Aid Bill OK Is Near

Solons Ponder Compromise

WASHINGTON, April 13—Congressional conferees sought agreement today on the $5.5 billion authorization for European recovery with final passage possible tomorrow.

House and Senate conferees, headed by Rep. Kee, (D) W. Va., and Sen. Connally, (D) Tex., chairman of the House and Senate committees on foreign affairs, met to iron out differences in the legislation.

The House conferees are working against time as the lower chamber is scheduled to begin a 10-day Easter recess tomorrow night. Kee said he believes an agreement can be reached yet today, although Connally is not so optimistic. The senator envisioned a two or three day delay.

House Speaker Rayburn, (D) Texas, indicated that the House will remain in session in any event until the European Recovery Program legislation is sent to the White House. He said members can leave Friday evening if necessary and still get home in time for Easter.

ADMINISTRATION leaders are anxious, however, to dispose of the measure by tomorrow, fearful that it would be difficult to maintain a quorum in the House beyond that. If the conferees reach agreement today, the House and Senate can continue action on the legislation tomorrow.

Kee told newsmen that there is "little difference" in the two bills and anticipates speedy agreement. The House passed its bill yesterday by a better than 70-1 margin.

The Senate passed its bill last Friday by the 10-to-1 margin of 70 to 7. The Senate measure contained the full amount requested by President Truman—five billion 580 million dollars—while the House cut the amount by $200 million.

The legislation continued the program for another 12 months, from July 1, 1949, to June 30, 1950, and also contained funds to carry through the Economic Cooperation Administration for the remaining three months of the current fiscal year ending June 30.

The Senate measure also contained a provision extending $54 million in Chinese aid, while the House adopted a separate bill. The House ECA bill also contained a $273 million guaranty fund to encourage American private enterprise in Europe which the Senate has not passed upon.

ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman said the heavy vote in favor of the Marshall Plan should "have a profound effect in building up the morale of the European countries that we are trying to help."

C. O. Leist Gets Post As City's Safety Director

Clyde O. Leist, 67, of 541 North Court street, will take up the duties of city safety director Friday, Mayor Thurman I. Miller announced Wednesday.

Leist's appointment gives him supervisory powers of the police and fire departments, Berger hospital and the city health board.

Mayor Miller indicated Wednesday that the formation of a board to operate the hospital has not taken place yet. He said the ordinance passed by council to create the board does not contain enough specific information to permit appointment of members.

When queried on the subject Wednesday, Leist said he understood that under state law he automatically would be a member of the hospital board.

Record Wheat Crop Seen For Ohio This Year

COLUMBUS, April 13—Ohio farm conditions today indicated a 60 million bushel record wheat crop this year.

The Ohio Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said conditions on April 1 indicated that the 57.5 million bushels of wheat produced in Ohio last year would be topped by at least 2.5 million in 1949.

Reports from Ohio farms up to April 1 indicated a small loss from winter conditions with the best crops expected from the southwest and the poorest from the northwestern.

Stocks of corn and oats on Ohio farms at the time the report was made were more than double the 1948 figures. Wheat stocks were 16 percent smaller than last year and soybeans in storage were a fourth larger.

Pastures made a good start this year with 90 percent the normal condition. The good feed supplies and heavy feeding practices were reflected in milk production.

With grain feed per milk cow averaging seven pounds, cows produced 411 million pounds of milk in March as compared to 374 million a year ago.

Egg production took a drop for March with 1949 production at 266 million eggs and 1948, at 279 million. However, production per bird exceeded the March, 1948, totals by two percent.

Ohio House Believed Near Conservation Unity Approval

COLUMBUS, April 13—The house of representatives today may end an eight-year fight to unify all Ohio conservation activities in one state department when it votes on the senate-approved unification measure.

Passage generally is anticipated. The bill cleared the senate with a dissenting vote, but sportsmen and forestry advocates still are engaged in a last-ditch fight against it.

The bill would establish a new "department of natural resources" of cabinet rank, headed by a $10,000-a-year director appointed by the governor for a six-year term. It would include divisions of lands, water, forestry, wildlife, parks, geological survey, and beach erosion.

Meanwhile, the house conservation committee sent to a subcommittee for revision the supposedly-agreed bill to control coal strip mining.

IT DEVELOPED at the first hearing last night that the measure is not as "agreed" as was first reported. Nonetheless, representatives of the operators and the administration expressed opinions that difficulties could be worked out.

The house industry and labor committee recommended for passage a senate approved bill to set up a committee to study the advisability of state insurance for unemployment due to disability—suggested by Gov. Frank Lausche in his initial legislative address.

The same committee tonight is expected to recommend for passage the bill increasing jobless pay benefits from a maximum of $21 for 22 weeks to $25 for 26 weeks, plus up to $5 a week additional for dependents. The bill already has passed the senate.

The full house passed, 75-50, a bill to permit Christian Science practitioners to charge a fee for their services. It was the first time in a half-dozen sessions that the measure cleared the house and got as far as the senate, where it now goes.

The rural house also handed the Association of Ohio Municipalities a major setback when it defeated, 40 yeas to 81 nays, a bill to permit cities to use public funds to pay dues in the association. The bill, already passed by the senate, set up a formula of $10 for each 1,000 population.

Then, to prove its unpredictability, the chamber called up for reconsideration a bill it had once defeated—to permit bowling on Sundays—and passed it, 80-45.

CIRCUS FOLK WILL HELP

British Showman Is Sad; He's Down To Pound Note

"I say, chappie, can you spare me a pound-note until Tuesday next?"

Although things are not yet that bad, William Peter Boulton Pugh, known better as "Digger" Pugh, was feeling sad Wednesday concerning the American money situation.

Digger, manager of the Wallaby Girls acrobatic act playing in the Mills Brother's circus, was relieved of $850 in what looked like cold, hard American cash Monday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Radcliff took the stocky Englishman into custody after two phony $50 bills were passed on Circleville merchants. The passer was identified as a Wallaby Girl by Charles Glitt, local restaurateur, and she, in turn, named Digger as her source.

Pugh told the sheriff and Ralph W. Roebuck, Secret Service agent investigating the case, that he had exchanged pound-notes in London for the worthless bills—11 $50 bills and three $100 bills, all proven counterfeit.

HE WAS RELIEVED of the money by the federal agent, and made up the loss to the Circleville business men—a token which left him only a single one-pound note drawn on the Bank of England.

Sheriff Radcliff and Agent Roebuck agreed that Digger was an unsuspecting innocent third party to a black-market bogus money ring. Investigations are being conducted through Paris (Continued on Page Two)

MANILA, April 13—Two hundred thousand pounds of stored bombs exploded today at the U. S. Air Force base at Clark Field and killed at least one person.

Several others were injured in the blast.

American Army authorities withheld the names of the dead and injured.

They said the cause of the explosion was not known.

The blast occurred at 3:44 a. m. (EST). It started widespread grass fires which raced toward the Army's 20th Station hospital. The blaze, however, was brought under control a few minutes before hospital authorities would have been forced to evacuate the patients.

PRAGUE, April 13—The U. S. embassy announced today that Czech police have arrested Miss Vlasta Adele Vraz head of American relief for Czechoslovakia, in connection with "political investigations."

Miss Vraz, of Berwyn, Ill., told the embassy that she is being treated well. Miss Vraz has been stationed in Prague since October, 1945.

'Pan-Americana' Act Set To Open Circus Season Performance Here

Pan-Americana is the title of the spectacle which will mark the opening of the 10th jubilee season program of the Mills Bros. Three Ring Circus.

The colorful Latin American pageant, which will open the show here Saturday when the Booster Club presents inaugural performances of America's largest motorized circus, will feature more people than any spectacle previously staged by the Mills Bros.

It will feature special musical arrangements by Sir Robert Mills' concert band, which opened full scale rehearsals Tuesday, making Pickaway Fairgrounds rock with spangledland tempos.

This year, in addition to colorful wardrobe enhancing the big show performance, uniforms have been procured for all employees from front door to back—ticket sellers, candy butchers, menagerie aides, property men and others.

ONE FEATURE of Pan-Americana will be dancing by the rhythmic Wallaby Girls, one of the several foreign importations featured with the 1949 edition of the circus. The Wallabies, who will present a major tumbling and acrobatic act as one of the big show features, studied interpretative dancing under Mille Jackson, considered England's foremost teacher in that field.

Tuesday night, at Goldcliff Rink, the Wallabies gave customers a preview of their whirlwind acrobatic performance.

During the day Tuesday, along with many other performers, they were kept busy by photographers from papers and news services on hand for pre-opening day shutter-clicking.

Perhaps the biggest hit with the cameramen—as with everyone, for that matter—was scored by Big Burma, the elephant, who even took up a baton in her trunk and led the band for one photo.

She also gave a brief preview of the new track specialty trainee Capt. Spencer Huntley has been working up as a surprise addition to her 1949 repertoire. For this one, Burma dons whiskers, but that is about all the inkling Huntley will give on details.

Stakes were driven Tuesday and the new big top center poles were laid out and given a rich coat of paint. Supt. Charley Brady plans to put up the top Wednesday or Thursday.

THE DOBAS DUO—Joe and Annette—who do a high perch act, arrived in quarters, along with a number of clowns, Les Rosettis, another foreign importation, are expected Wednesday.

Booster Club members will have the circus ticket wagon at Court and Main streets here Thursday and Friday afternoons to enable persons who haven't already done so to purchase tickets in advance and avoid standing in line at the fairgrounds Saturday. Proceeds go to purchase uniforms and equipment for the high school band.

Local Co-Op Sees More Power Users

Laurelville-Adelphi Areas To Benefit

Folks down Laurelville-Adelphi way stood a good chance Wednesday of getting electric power they long have sought.

Dr. Walter E. Brehm, congressman representing this (the 11th) congressional district, reported from Washington D. C. that authorization had been given for the loan of $500,000 to the South Central Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc.

Dr. Brehm said the loan was authorized for "expansion and improvement in facilities."

In Circleville, S. J. Fischer, manager of the local office of South Central REA, said his co-op had been waiting "about 16 months" for the loan.

He said the firm's evaluation would be hiked to nearly $4 million when the loan is added to South Central's account.

Fischer said he expected work in the Laurelville-Adelphi area would start in a few days.

MAJOR ITEMS on the new construction job call for mainly transmission lines, Fischer reported.

These lines, carrying 40,000 volts of electricity, will be strung over the hill country toward Laurelville, Adelphi and well into the Ash Cave area. Salt Creek Township will be in on the deal, too.

Two substations will be erected, Fischer said. One will be west of Circleville while the second will be located on the county line road near Whisler.

In all, the local REA official estimated, 16 or 18 miles of transmission lines will be erected. Off these 40,000-volt cables will finger out the 6,900-volt distribution lines. These, in turn, will be broken down for domestic use.

Father Is Held In Kidnaping Of His Own Son

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 13—Gambler Joe Goodman stood accused by the Beverly Hills police department today of engineering the kidnaping of his five-year-old son, Joey.

Joey was abducted Monday morning and released, unharmed, a few hours later when his mother, Mrs. Mary Goodman, turned over $33,000 to the kidnappers.

Beverly Hills Police Chief C. H. Anderson said his department explored the theory the ransom may have been intended to cover a gambling debt. Goodman insisted the kidnaping of Joey was on the level.

"We accused Goodman outright of engineering this thing," Chief Anderson said. "He didn't confirm or deny it. The whole thing smells pretty bad."

Goodman was booked on suspicion of grand theft after his wife had testified he had not returned a watch he assertedly had taken to the jeweler to get repaired.

Goodman later was released on $1,000 bail under a writ of habeas corpus issued on application of Attorney Albert Allen. The writ is returnable next Monday.

Los Angeles police records show Goodman was arrested in 1945 on suspicion of robbery and twice the following year in dice game raids.

Easter Singing Program Ends School Week

Circleville high school students tapered off school activities during Holy Week Wednesday afternoon with a singing program in the school auditorium.

The program, a series of Easter hymns and songs, was directed by Truman Eberly, high school music instructor, and led by the school's brass quartet.

Members of the brass quartet are James Bartholomew, Edward Wolfe, Charles Magill and Don Rinehart.

Circleville students were dismissed following the sing, and will not resume classroom work again until Monday.

Perry Township school, one of the four Pickaway County schools which was not to dismiss this week for Good Friday, has informed George D. McDowell, county superintendent, that it now plans to close.

Embezzler Found With 2 Wives, 2 Cage Teams

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 13—Memphis police today held David A. Prager, 29, on charges of bigamy and embezzlement of $28,000 which he reportedly spent in support of two wives, a child and two basketball teams.

Chief of Detectives M. A. Hinds said Prager confessed that he took the money from the Hunt-Berlin Coal Co. here over a period of five months.

Prager, cashier for the firm, admitted to authorities he also used the money to support two amateur basketball teams, one an all-girl team and the other a boys' quintet.

He said he married Mrs. Anita Coburn Prager about three years ago in Memphis. They have a one year old son. He met Annie Joyce Katz Prager in her Memphis home recently and after a whirlwind courtship married her in Hernando, Miss., last Jan. 31.

Prager told Detective Hinds he spent week days in Memphis and on weekends journeyed by air to his Los Angeles wife.

He said his Memphis wife knew of his 19-year-old bride, Prager added that he told Anita that he had embezzled the money last March 23 and asked her to inform his employer. Prager was seized Monday.

His Los Angeles wife was "astonished" by the revelation of his Memphis wife and the embezzlement.

SWEDEN IS of similar attitude. All Arab nations, supported by Britain, planned to stress during the day the need for sending the application to the political committee.

The standpoint of the British is that Israel's entry must remain in suspension until alleged violations of the Palestine truce have been satisfactorily cleared up and assurances given that Israel will observe armistice obligations.

On the whole, there is little doubt that a majority vote will be cast by the assembly, leaving it to next week for actual admission procedure as the 59th UN member.

The assembly has already accepted the case of Hungary's Cardinal Mindszenty and imprisoned Bulgarian church leaders for its agenda.

In case the plenary session clears decks today, the 58-nation Ad Hoc committee begins debate on it at Lake Success tomorrow.

The assembly debate on the agenda question disclosed a strong inclination to confine the UN discussion on the Balkan church leaders to statements of viewpoint, leaving further action over to the next assembly in order to allow procedure under the peace treaties to show results.

MAJOR ITEMS on the new construction job call for mainly transmission lines, Fischer reported.

These lines, carrying 40,000 volts of electricity, will be strung over the hill country toward Laurelville, Adelphi and well into the Ash Cave area. Salt Creek Township will be in on the deal, too.

Two substations will be erected, Fischer said. One will be west of Circleville while the second will be located on the county line road near Whisler.

In all, the local REA official estimated, 16 or 18 miles of transmission lines will be erected. Off these 40,000-volt cables will finger out the 6,900-volt distribution lines.

These, in turn, will be broken down for domestic use.

Father Is Held In Kidnaping Of His Own Son

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 13—Gambler Joe Goodman stood accused by the Beverly Hills police department today of engineering the kidnaping of his five-year-old son, Joey.

Joey was abducted Monday morning and released, unharmed, a few hours later when his mother, Mrs. Mary Goodman, turned over $33,000 to the kidnappers.

Beverly Hills Police Chief C. H. Anderson said his department explored the theory the ransom may have been intended to cover a gambling debt.

Goodman insisted the kidnaping of Joey was on the level.

"We accused Goodman outright of engineering this thing," Chief Anderson said. "He didn't confirm or deny it. The whole thing smells pretty bad."

Goodman was booked on suspicion of grand theft after his wife had testified he had not returned a watch he assertedly had taken to the jeweler to get repaired.

Goodman later was released on $1,000 bail under a writ of habeas corpus issued on application of Attorney Albert Allen. The writ is returnable next Monday.

Los Angeles police records show Goodman was arrested in 1945 on suspicion of robbery and twice the following year in dice game raids.

Laurelville-Adelphi Areas To Benefit

Folks down Laurelville-Adelphi way stood a good chance Wednesday of getting electric power they long have sought.

Dr. Walter E. Brehm, congressman representing this (the 11th) congressional district, reported from Washington D. C. that authorization had been given for the loan of $500,000 to the South Central Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc.

Dr. Brehm said the loan was authorized for "expansion and improvement in facilities."

In Circleville, S. J. Fischer, manager of the local office of South Central REA, said his co-op had been waiting "about 16 months" for the loan.

He said the firm's evaluation would be hiked to nearly $4 million when the loan is added to South Central's account.

Fischer said he expected work in the Laurelville-Adelphi area would start in a few days.

MAJOR ITEMS on the new construction job call for mainly transmission lines, Fischer reported.

Embezzler Found With 2 Wives, 2 Cage Teams

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 13—Memphis police today held David A. Prager, 29, on charges of bigamy and embezzlement of $28,000 which he reportedly spent in support of two wives, a child and two basketball teams.

Chief of Detectives M. A. Hinds said Prager confessed that he took the money from the Hunt-Berlin Coal Co. here over a period of five months.

Prager, cashier for the firm, admitted to authorities he also used the money to support two amateur basketball teams, one an all-girl team and the other a boys' quintet.

He said he married Mrs. Anita Coburn Prager about three years ago in Memphis. They have a one year old son. He met Annie Joyce Katz Prager in her Memphis home recently and after a whirlwind courtship married her in Hernando, Miss., last Jan. 31.

Prager told Detective Hinds he spent week days in Memphis and on weekends journeyed by air to his Los Angeles wife.

He said his Memphis wife knew of his 19-year-old bride. Prager added that he told Anita that he had embezzled the money last March 23 and asked her to inform his employer.

Prager was seized Monday. His Los Angeles wife was "astonished" by the revelation of his Memphis wife and the embezzlement.

Wife Unjailed As Dishes Pile

MARTINS FERRY, April 13—John Richter of nearby Deep Run didn't have a pumpkin shell so he put his wife in jail on a minor charge.

As the saying goes, he kept her there very well. However, when the dirty dishes began to pile up, Richter decided to bring the little woman home. It cost him $16.60 to get her out.

Prager told Detective Hinds he spent week days in Memphis and on weekends journeyed by air to his Los Angeles wife.

Strip Mining Agreement Seen Now In Offing

COLUMBUS, April 13—Disagreements over the supposedly "agreed" strip mining bill came into the open today as the measure was sent to a three-member Ohio house conservation subcommittee for revision.

However, spokesmen for both the coal operators and the sponsors of the bill expressed the opinion that the differences could be worked out satisfactorily.

The principal points of disagreement seemed to be the bill's requirements that open coal seams be covered to a depth of at least three feet and that breakthrough to underground workings be sealed off.

The bill would also require strippers to level land to "a gently rolling topography," provide access roads and firelanes, construct earthen dams to make lakes and ponds in the final cuts, and plant trees, shrubs, legumes or grasses.

Bond of $190 an acre is required to guarantee compliance, in addition to a license fee of $50 plus $10 for each acre stripped.

Boyd Wallace, Cadiz farmer who generally is expected to be named chief of the new "division of reclamation" if the bill goes through, supported the bill as "perhaps the very best that can be achieved at this time," although he said it was "far from perfect."

Marietta Firm Plans To Shut

MARIETTA, April 13—About 150 employees of one of Marietta's oldest and biggest industries began looking for new jobs today after the company announced its closing.

A shutdown of the local branch of the International Derrick and Equipment Co., located in suburban Westview, was announced yesterday by Company President O. M. Havekott.

Martin J. Rapp, plant general manager was unavailable for comment. Havekott, however, said the move was taken because "sales volume had not measured up to expected levels."

Woman Dies In Well; Probe Being Opened

ELYRIA, April 13—Lorain County authorities questioned the husband and three children of Mrs. Margaret S. Klein today in connection with the drowning of the woman.

Mrs. Klein was found dead at the bottom of a 14-foot well yesterday at nearby Amherst.

Two daughters, Mary Alice, 18, and Suzanne, 14, and a son, John, 11, said their mother had been ill and that she had been missing all night.

The body was discovered by John, who said he saw a coat near the well, which is about 100 feet from the family's farmhouse. He told authorities that he called his father who rushed home and stuck a long pole down the well to see if his wife "could hold on."

Lorain County Coroner Paul Tillman said that he found signs of bruises under Mrs. Klein's armpits. However, these may have been caused by the 18-inch board opening to the well, he added.

Some said a gas station had blown up. Others were equally insistent that it was no more than a local mill being blown to smithereens. All were sure it was a loud bang.

It was so loud, in fact, that it drew clerks from behind counters in stores on Court and Franklin streets, caused Pickaway Courthouse employees to rush outside, and sent Fire Chief Talmer Wise on a hasty tour of the city to find out who and what was exploding.

Police Chief William McCrady said he was startled, too—until he found out the noise was caused by a truck tire blowing out on Court street.

Patrolman Turney Ross said the Thomas auto was proceeding south on South Court street when the driver applied his brakes. The car skidded across the street into the path of the north bound truck, he added.

Mrs. Hudson's petition cites the pair was married April 11, 1937, in Circleville. They have one child, 7 years-old. Her petition asks sole custody of the child, alimony and support for the child.

Other petition filed was by Sadie M. Hettinger against her husband, Paul F. Hettinger.

Mrs. Hettinger's petition accuses her husband of gross neglect of duty, cites that the couple was married Feb. 28, 1948. They have one child, less than one-year-old.

Her petition asks for divorce, care, custody and control of the child, alimony and support, and all of the household goods.

Hurrying Cited As Cause Of Many Accidents

COLUMBUS, April 13—If Americans would just slow up—compromise with life and stop seeking excitement in a hurry—there would be less accidents.

That's the opinion of Eldon Dummit, former Kentucky attorney general, and he voiced it to the 19th annual All-Ohio Safety Congress here last night.

Dummit said he thinks the right mental attitudes toward life and learning to love their work would cut down Americans accident toll.

Cutting down the strain of modern life is the key to safety measures, he said.

Roland P. Blake, chief safety engineer of the U. S. Department of Labor, seemed to agree with him. He said:

"For eight years over two million workers have been killed or injured at their work each year."

"In agriculture especially the rise is swift."

Blake said small firms and farm-mechanization seem to be chief causes in the rising rate of accidents. The congress will continue to meet for the next two days.

Court Writes End To Pair Of Marriages Here

Two short marriages have been ended in Pickaway County common pleas court.

She was awarded the divorce, custody of their one child and money for its support.

Other decree was awarded to Eleanor Groom Burt from her husband, James W. Burt, also on grounds of gross neglect of duty.

Mrs. Burt's petition states the pair was married April 11, 1947. She was granted the divorce and custody and control of a minor child.

5 Escape Work Camp, Cleveland

CLEVELAND, April 13—Five early-morning escapees from Cleveland workhouse in suburban Warrensville still were at large today.

The five apparently hid in an idle room at the institution and then climbed over the roof of a laundry annex to freedom.

Guards fired at least three shots at the fleeing men, but were unable to capture them.

One prisoner, however, identified as Frank Urssing of Cleveland, was found hiding on the laundry roof. He is serving a term for petty larceny. Cleveland police were called into the hunt for the missing prisoners.

Home Matters To Get Priority Over New Pact

WASHINGTON, April 13—Majority Leader Lucas, (D) Ill., declared today that the Senate will dispose of its "important" domestic legislation before taking up the North Atlantic pact.

Lucas at the same time indicated that the issue of whether American troops should be used abroad in implementing the security treaty will be a critical point of Senate debate.

He said the issue of implementation with arms and troops must be decided in debate on the floor of the Senate which received the pact from President Truman yesterday.

Lucas and other administration spokesmen in the Senate make it plain there will be "no rush" with the 12-nation treaty—mainly because its ratification hinges upon the arms implementation problem, upon which there is no information to date.

Lucas estimated that it will be a month or a month and a half before the pact passes through the hearing process of the foreign relations committee and reaches the Senate calendar. He added:

"Our important domestic legislation will come first—ahead of the pact."

Miss Oliver's teachers say she is an excellent student in addition to her spelling prowess. She was eliminated early in the state contests last year.

The state meet will be divided into two sections, featuring a written spelling exam and followed by the old-fashioned oral spelling bee.

passed after more than an hour and a half of debate, during which two attempts to insert major amendments were shouted down.

FORTY-THREE Democrats and 32 Republicans joined to pass the measure over the opposition of 22 Democrats and 28 Republicans.

Rep. George Gruenmeyer (D-Montgomery) attempted one amendment which would have given the right to charge a fee to any clergyman. It was shouted down, despite the contention of Rep. Clifton Caryl (R-Union) that the right should be extended to all churches or to none.

Rep. William Manahan (R-De-fiance) argues that Ohio is the only state in the nation which now bans the charging of such a fee. He read letters from health officials in West Virginia, Kentucky, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Montana to the effect that Christian Scientists have never abused the privilege.

The opposition to the cities' lobbying bill was led by Minority Leader C. William O'Neill (R-Washington) who charged that "to take taxpayers money to finance a lobby is unsound policy."

The Sunday bowling bill had been defeated March 31 when it received only 58 votes, with 60 cast against it. An old "blue law" forbids bowling on Sundays, although the law is not enforced in most communities.

2 Wives File Petitions Asking Divorces Here

Two wives have launched divorce proceedings against their husbands in Pickaway County common pleas court.

First of the petitions asking divorce was filed by Dorothy E. Hudson against her husband, William H. Hudson. Her petition charges him with gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Hudson's petition cites the pair was married April 11, 1937, in Circleville. They have one child, 7 years old. Her petition asks sole custody of the child, alimony and support for the child.

Other petition filed was by Sadie M. Hettinger against her husband, Paul F. Hettinger.

Mrs. Hettinger's petition accuses her husband of gross neglect of duty, cites that the couple was married Feb. 28, 1948. They have one child, less than one-year-old.

Her petition asks for divorce, care, custody and control of the child, alimony and support, and all of the household goods.

Rumors Flying Concerning 'Big' Explosion Here

Some said a gas station had blown up. Others were equally insistent that it was no more than a local mill being blown to smithereens. All were sure it was a loud bang.

It was so loud, in fact, that it drew clerks from behind counters in stores on Court and Franklin streets, caused Pickaway Courthouse employees to rush outside, and sent Fire Chief Talmer Wise on a hasty tour of the city to find out who and what was exploding.

Police Chief William McCrady said he was startled, too—until he found out the noise was caused by a truck tire blowing out on Court street.

'Cannibal' Gets Death Sentence

BREMEN, April 13—A self-confessed German "cannibal" has been sentenced to death for killing two boys and committing the first crime in cannibalism in Germany in 50 years.

Bodo Fries admitted the slayings in 1945 and 1947.

He told a Bremen court yesterday that after slaying the second youngster he ate part of his leg. He said his wife canned the rest after he told her it was pork.

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Vern Pontious said no children were in the bus when the accident occurred. Driver of the bus, Ralph Ater, 54, of New Holland, had turned from Main street onto Court street, colliding with a car driven by Neil E. Huntsinger, 47, of Ravenna, the deputy said.

Hurrying Cited As Cause Of Many Accidents

COLUMBUS, April 13—If Americans would just slow up—compromise with life and stop seeking excitement in a hurry—there would be less accidents.

That's the opinion of Eldon Dummit, former Kentucky attorney general, and he voiced it to the 19th annual All-Ohio Safety Congress here last night.

Dummit said he thinks the right mental attitudes toward life and learning to love their work would cut down Americans' accident toll.

Cutting down the strain of modern life is the key to safety measures, he said.

Roland P. Blake, chief safety engineer of the U. S. Department of Labor, seemed to agree with him. He said:

"For eight years over two million workers have been killed or injured at their work each year."

"In agriculture especially the signs are swift."

Blake said small firms and farm-mechanization seem to be chief causes in the rising rate of accidents. The congress will continue to meet for the next two days.

Court Writes End To Pair Of Marriages Here

Two short marriages have been ended in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Divorce decree has been granted to Martha Musgrave from her husband, Eddie C. Musgrave, on grounds of gross neglect of duty.

Mrs. Musgrave's petition cites that the couple was wed May 5, 1947, in Texas.

She was awarded the divorce, custody of their one child and money for its support.

Other decree was awarded to Eleanor Groom Burt from her husband, James W. Burt, also on grounds of gross neglect of duty.

Mrs. Burt's petition states the pair was married April 11, 1947. She was granted the divorce and custody and control of a minor child.

5 Escape Work Camp, Cleveland

CLEVELAND, April 13—Five early-morning escapees from Cleveland workhouse in suburban Warrensville still were at large today.

The five apparently hid in an idle room at the institution and then climbed over the roof of a laundry annex to freedom.

Guards fired at least three shots at the fleeing men, but were unable to capture them.

One prisoner, however, identified as Frank Urssing of Cleveland, was found hiding on the laundry roof. He is serving a term for petty larceny. Cleveland police were called into the hunt for the missing prisoners.

Home Matters To Get Priority Over New Pact

WASHINGTON, April 13—Majority Leader Lucas, (D) Ill., declared today that the Senate will dispose of its "important" domestic legislation before taking up the North Atlantic pact.

Lucas at the same time indicated that the issue of whether American troops should be used abroad in implementing the security treaty will be a critical point of Senate debate.

He said the issue of implementation with arms and troops must be decided in debate on the floor of the Senate which received the pact from President Truman yesterday.

Lucas and other administration spokesmen in the Senate make it plain there will be "no rush" with the 12-nation treaty—mainly because its ratification hinges upon the arms implementation problem, upon which there is no information to date.

Lucas estimated that it will be a month or a month and a half before the pact passes through the hearing process of the foreign relations committee and reaches the Senate calendar. He added:

"Our important domestic legislation will come first—ahead of the pact."

ions. The other contestants were school champs from High Street, Corwin Street, Walnut Street and Franklin Street schools.

ELIMINATED in the final title test were Charles Montgomery, High Street school champion of the fifth grade; Leon Calvin, a sixth grader champion of Corwin Street school; Carolyn Ferguson, fourth grade, champ of Walnut Street school; and Carol Ann Johnson, fourth grade, champion of Franklin Street school.

Miss Oliver's teachers say she is an excellent student in addition to her spelling prowess. She was eliminated early in the state contests last year.

The state meet will be divided into two sections, featuring a written spelling exam and followed by the old-fashioned oral spelling bee.

Jackson Club Names Officers

The organization meeting of Jackson Livestock 4-H Club took place Monday with officers being elected at this time.

Unity Bill Nearing OK

passed after more than an hour and a half of debate, during which two attempts to insert major amendments were shouted down.

FORTY-THREE Democrats and 32 Republicans joined to pass the measure over the opposition of 22 Democrats and 28 Republicans.

Rep. George Gruenmeyer (D-Montgomery) attempted one amendment which would have given the right to charge a fee to any clergyman. It was shouted down, despite the contention of Rep. Clifton Caryl (R-Union) that the right should be extended to all churches or to none.

Rep. William Manahan (R-De-fiance) argues that Ohio is the only state in the nation which now bans the charging of such a fee. He read letters from health officials in West Virginia, Kentucky, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Montana to the effect that Christian Scientists have never abused the privilege.

The opposition to the cities' lobbying bill was led by Minority Leader C. William O'Neill (R-Washington) who charged that "to take taxpayers money to finance a lobby is unsound policy."

The Sunday bowling bill had been defeated March 31 when it received only 58 votes, with 60 cast against it. An old "blue law" forbids bowling on Sundays, although the law is not enforced in most communities.

The house defeated, 54-69, an amendment that would have limited bowling to the afternoons.

Greek Court Opens Trial In Death Of Yank

SALONIKA, April 13—A Greek court weighed the testimony of Stelio Mouzenides today that his brother was such an ardent Communist that he would have accepted party orders to kill U. S. Newsman George Polk.

The brother, Adam, is still a fugitive. He is one of four defendants accused by the government of playing Polk, allegedly as part of a Communist plot to cut off U. S. aid to Greece.

The two defendants present, Gregory Staktopoulos, a Salonika newsman, and his mother, Anna, watched stolidly as the government began to buttress its charge when the trial opened yesterday that Polk was killed on Communist Party orders.

The government says that when Staktopoulos testifies he will assert that he led Polk to the boat from which the American's trussed-up body was flung into the harbor 11 months ago, but that Adam Mouzenides actually did the killing.

Mouzenides and the fourth defendant, Evangelos Vasvanas, also a fugitive, are being tried in absentia. Greek Communists, who note that Polk had criticized the Athens government, claim that Mouzenides died in guerrilla fighting against the government a month before Polk was slain.

Miss Eclipse? Another One Due In Fall

One of nature's most dazzling shows—total eclipse of the Moon—was obscured from the eyes of Pickaway Countians Tuesday night by heavy folds of clouds.

Local star-gazers were not the only Ohioans to miss the show, however, since the same cloud blanket covered nearly all of the state. Only one city reported getting a "good look."

Clevelanders watched the shadow of Earth creep over the face of the Moon until about 10:10 p. m., when the clouds rolled in. The Lake Erie watchers just missed the total phase of the eclipse, which occurred at 10:28.

Some consolation is offered local gazers, however, since another total eclipse is scheduled for Oct. 6. Scientists say the Moon will be as full as it was Tuesday night during the show next Fall.

Mayor Miller still has yet to appoint a new city service director. Joe Rooney, the former service chief, resigned recently to accept a position with the state highway department.

DETERIORATION OFFSETTING IMPROVEMENTS

Crop Yields Here Since 1870 Show Steady, Yet Puny, Increase, County Expert Claims

The history of crop yields per acre in Ohio since 1870 shows, a steady but "puny" increase, according to Larry Best, Pickaway County extension agent.

Best insists that had all farmers adopted improved practices, the yield increases over the years would have been much larger.

However, he points out that it is not because farmers have failed to apply fertilizer to their lands that the increase has been so low. He says:

"From 1920 to 1929 the average acre of wheat in Ohio annually received about 180 pounds of fertilizer. Field tests show that this alone should increase the yield at least seven bushels. "The actual increase was only three bushels."

"THE NATURAL productive capacity of the land has been deteriorating at a rate almost fast enough to offset all of these improvements in soil and crop management."

According to Best there are four major factors which have been found to contribute most to the well-being of soil by wise farmers. These are liberal input of organic matter, control of water, good soil tilth and a sufficiency of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

Physical and chemical tests have shown that seven virgin soils of Ohio averaged 4,215 pounds of nitrogen in one acre of surface soils.

The average for comparable cultivated soils was 2,745, a loss of 1,470 pounds or just about one-third.

"Records show that in 1896 the relative nitrogen content and yield of continuous corn plots in Wooster was 100 percent. By 1925 the nitrogen content had dropped to 41.2 percent and the corn yield had dropped to 45.6 percent," Best says.

By following crop rotation the average annual production in pounds of total digestible nutrients and proteins per acre would be over a seven year period:

FOR CORN ALONE, 1,945 pounds of TDN and 156 pounds of protein; for corn rotated with oats, 1,850 pounds TDN and 174 pounds protein; for corn rotated with wheat and timothy, 2,210 pounds TDN and 209 pounds protein.

For corn rotated with oats, wheat and clover, 2,110 pounds TDN and 250 pounds protein; for corn rotated with wheat and two years of alfalfa, 3,180 pounds TDN and 511 pounds protein.

For corn rotated with wheat and three years of alfalfa, 3,530 pounds TDN and 643 pounds protein.

The dollar effect of legumes upon the productivity of the soil when corn is rotated with wheat and alfalfa is $30.59, with wheat and clover, $61.64, with wheat and soybeans, $54.54 and with wheat and timothy, $45.08, according to the county agent, who said the figures are based on pre-war values.

"One cultivated crop takes from the soil from 2,000 to 10,000 pounds of organic matter. The roots left in the soil by alfalfa will weigh about 3,500 pounds. Sweet clover roots deposit 4,500 pounds of organic material while timothy leaves 4,800 pounds of roots in the soil, but does not add nitrogen as the legumes do," says Best, adding:

"PLENTY OF organic matter means more nitrogen in the soil more water holding capacity in sandy and gravelly soils, better drainage on tight soils, more air space, better tilth and soil that is easier to work. This all add up to increased crop yields."

"With present average rainfall and the present waterholding capacity of our soil, 60 to 65 bushels of corn per acre is our limit because of lack of moisture. We must increase the water holding capacity of our soil to get much of an increase in crop yields. More and better sods will increase organic matter, improve tilth and increase waterholding capacity."

Pickaway County feed production costs can be cut greatly, crop yields increased and soil fertility improved, according to Best, by:

1. Use of superior crop varieties and hybrids.

2. Protect barn manure and apply to sod to go to corn and as top dressing for the benefit of new meadow-pasture seedings.

3. Expanding input of organic matter by doubling the amount of high quality grass-legume meadows and pastures and liming.

4. Increase organic matter by leaving more crop residue, such as corn stalks and top growth of meadows on the cropland.

5. Trapping more water in the soil from runoff and percolation. (More grasses and legumes, contours and a ribbed tillage surface will aid greatly.)

6. Improving soil tilth by more frequent sod crop and less violent seed bed preparation.

7. Tilling wet land.

8. By doubling the usage of fertilizer, (use of 200 pounds of fertilizer per acre annually on all cropland. Three-year rotation 600 pounds per acre. Four-year rotation 800 pound per acre).

9. Match the rate of planting, especially corn, to the capability of the land. (80 bushels corn land or better, should have 12,000 to 14,000 plants per acre, rather than the average of 9,000 the present rate.

10. By using fertilizer of the right analysis.

Columbus Seeks Fire Starter

COLUMBUS, April 13—Columbus firemen tracked down clues to discover a firebug who apparently started nine consecutive fires in the downtown area yesterday, threatening for a time to start a major blaze.

Fire Chief Harry W. Caldwell said the fires which broke out behind business establishments were undoubtedly set by someone with a fire mania.

The chief said that each of the fires followed a similar pattern and that they broke out in sequence within 2½ hours. He said the firebug must have had a car to reach the points scattered in a two-mile area.

Huge Wheat Crop Ahead

Yield To Be Just Under U.S. Record

WASHINGTON, April 13—Farmers are well on the way today to filling the nation's grain bins with another huge wheat crop despite uncertainty over what Congress will do to stabilize wheat prices.

The Agriculture Department reports that April 1 condition of the winter wheat crop indicates a yield of 1,019,863,000 bushels. This is second only to the record harvest of 1,068,048,000 bushels in 1947.

In addition, planting intentions for spring wheat could boost the total by 291 million bushels if farmers follow through with their announced plans and yields per acre are average.

Production of all wheat this year would be more than one billion, 310 million bushels—only 57 million bushels below the all-time record.

This would be enough to cover domestic consumption of 750 million bushels with about 560 million bushels left over for export and addition to carry-over.

FOREIGN shipments in the crop year ending next June 10 are expected to total about 500 million bushels, but experts anticipate a tapering off in demand in subsequent years.

Moreover, an estimated carry-over of about 300 million bushels of 1948-crop wheat is an important item in the picture.

The 1949 crop is the last for which full 90 percent of parity loans will be available under present law unless the growers by a two-thirds approving vote adopt marketing quotas for the 1950 harvest.

Current loan rates average $2 per bushel on a national basis, but parity will be recomputed at the beginning of the new crop year on July 1 with a lower rate almost inevitable as result of recent declines in market prices.

Newsman Snub Ouster Order

COLUMBUS, April 13—Newsman covering the house finance committee's first hearing on Gov. Frank Lausche's $649 million record-breaking budget flatly refused to leave the committee room yesterday when ordered out by Chairman Anna O'Neil (D-Summit).

Before the difference reached a serious stage, however, Mrs. O'Neil withdrew her order when Rep. Tom Barrett (D-Youngstown) pointed out to her that house rules forbid "star chamber" or private sessions.

The stubborn newsmen then sat through an executive session which produced nothing of news interest.

Veteran GOP Leader Ailing

CLEVELAND, April 13—"Big Alex" Bernstein, 68-year-old veteran Cleveland politician, was reported in "fair" condition today in Cleveland Clinic hospital.

Bernstein, according to his doctors, was "holding his own" at the hospital after a week's illness.

The GOP campaigner has been a ward leader for 40 years and during that time has served as a councilman and city public service director.

OSU Student Sent To Clinic

COLUMBUS, April 13—A 28-year-old Ohio State university student was committed to the Lima State hospital for observation today after a 35-minute jury trial for arson.

The student, Wendell P. Wert, was accused of setting a $1,000 fire in his apartment in a suicide attempt. He also slashed his wrists and throat. Court officials said the trial was one of shortest in years.

Best insists that had all farmers adopted improved practices, the yield increases over the years would have been much larger.

However, he points out that it is not because farmers have failed to apply fertilizer to their lands that the increase has been so low. He says:

"From 1920 to 1929 the average acre of wheat in Ohio annually received about 180 pounds of fertilizer. Field tests show that this alone should increase the yield at least seven bushels.

"The actual increase was only three bushels.

"THE NATURAL productive capacity of the land has been deteriorating at a rate almost fast enough to offset all of these improvements in soil and crop management."

According to Best there are four major factors which have been found to contribute most to the well-being of soil by wise farmers. These are liberal input of organic matter, control of water, good soil tilth and a sufficiency of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

Physical and chemical tests have shown that seven virgin soils of Ohio averaged 4,215 pounds of nitrogen in one acre of surface soils.

The average for comparable cultivated soils was 2,745, a loss of 1,470 pounds or just about one-third.

"Records show that in 1896 the relative nitrogen content and yield of continuous corn plots in Wooster was 100 percent. By 1925 the nitrogen content had dropped to 41.2 percent and the corn yield had dropped to 45.6 percent," Best says.

By following crop rotation the average annual production in pounds of total digestible nutrients and proteins per acre would be over a seven year period:

FOR CORN ALONE, 1,945 pounds of TDN and 156 pounds of protein; for corn rotated with oats, 1,850 pounds TDN and 174 pounds protein; for corn rotated with wheat and timothy, 2,210 pounds TDN and 209 pounds protein.

For corn rotated with oats, wheat and clover, 2,110 pounds TDN and 250 pounds protein; for corn rotated with wheat and two years of alfalfa, 3,180 pounds TDN and 511 pounds protein.

For corn rotated with wheat and three years of alfalfa, 3,530 pounds TDN and 643 pounds protein.

The dollar effect of legumes upon the productivity of the soil when corn is rotated with wheat and alfalfa is $30.59, with wheat and clover, $61.64, with wheat and soybeans, $54.54 and with wheat and timothy, $45.08, according to the county agent, who said the figures are based on pre-war values.

"One cultivated crop takes from the soil from 2,000 to 10,000 pounds of organic matter. The roots left in the soil by alfalfa will weigh about 3,500 pounds. Sweet clover roots deposit 4,500 pounds of organic material while timothy leaves 4,800 pounds of roots in the soil, but does not add nitrogen as the legumes do," says Best, adding:

"PLENTY OF organic matter means more nitrogen in the soil more water holding capacity in sandy and gravelly soils, better drainage on tight soils, more air space, better tilth and soil that is easier to work. This all adds up to increased crop yields.

"With present average rainfall and the present waterholding capacity of our soil, 60 to 65 bushels of corn per acre is our limit because of lack of moisture. We must increase the water holding capacity of our soil to get much of an increase in crop yields. More and better sods will increase organic matter, improve tilth and increase waterholding capacity."

Pickaway County feed production costs can be cut greatly, crop yields increased and soil fertility improved, according to Best, by:

1. Use of superior crop varieties and hybrids.
2. Protect barn manure and apply to sod to go to corn and as top dressing for the benefit of new meadow-pasture seedings.
3. Expanding input of organic matter by doubling the amount of high quality grass-legume meadows and pastures and liming.
4. Increase organic matter by leaving more crop residue, such as corn stalks and top growth of meadows on the cropland.
5. Trapping more water in the soil from runoff and percolation. (More grasses and legumes, contours and a ribbed tillage surface will aid greatly.)
6. Improving soil tilth by more frequent sod crop and less violent seed bed preparation.
7. Tilling wet land.
8. By doubling the usage of fertilizer, (use of 200 pounds of fertilizer per acre annually on all cropland. Three-year rotation 600 pounds per acre. Four-year rotation 800 pound per acre).
9. Match the rate of planting, especially corn, to the capability of the land. (80 bushels corn land or better, should have 12,000 to 14,000 plants per acre, rather than the average of 9,000 the present rate.
10. By using fertilizer of the right analysis.

Huge Wheat Crop Ahead

Yield To Be Just Under U.S. Record

WASHINGTON, April 13—Farmers are well on the way today to filling the nation's grain bins with another huge wheat crop despite uncertainty over what Congress will do to stabilize wheat prices.

The Agriculture Department reports that April 1 condition of the winter wheat crop indicates a yield of 1,019,863,000 bushels. This is second only to the record harvest of 1,068,048,000 bushels in 1947.

In addition, planting intentions for Spring wheat could boost the total by 291 million bushels if farmers follow through with their announced plans and yields per acre are average.

Production of all wheat this would be more than one billion, 310 million bushels—only 57 million bushels below the all-time record.

This would be enough to cover domestic consumption of 750 million bushels with about 560 million bushels left over for export and addition to carry-over.

FOREIGN shipments in the crop year ending next June 10 are expected to total about 500 million bushels, but experts anticipate a tapering off in demand in subsequent years.

Moreover, an estimated carry-over of about 300 million bushels of 1948-crop wheat is an important item in the picture.

The 1949 crop is the last for which full 90 percent of parity loans will be available under present law unless the growers by a two-thirds approving vote adopt marketing quotas for the 1950 harvest.

Current loan rates average $2 per bushel on a national basis, but parity will be recomputed at the beginning of the new crop year on July 1 with a lower rate almost inevitable as result of recent declines in market prices.

OSU Student Sent To Clinic

COLUMBUS, April 13—A 28-year-old Ohio State university student was committed to the Lima State hospital for observation today after a 35-minute jury trial for arson.

The student, Wendell P. Wert, was accused of setting a $1,000 fire in his apartment in a suicide attempt. He also slashed his wrists and throat. Court officials said the trial was one of shortest in years.

Newsman Snub Ouster Order

COLUMBUS, April 13—Newsman covering the house finance committee's first hearing on Gov. Frank Lausche's $649 million record-breaking budget flatly refused to leave the committee room yesterday when ordered out by Chairman Anna O'Neil (D-Summit).

Before the difference reached a serious stage, however, Mrs. O'Neil withdrew her order when Rep. Tom Barrett (D-Youngstown) pointed out to her that house rules forbid "star chamber" or private sessions.

The stubborn newsmen then sat through an executive session which produced nothing of news interest.

Veteran GOP Leader Ailing

CLEVELAND, April 13—"Big Alex" Bernstein, 68-year-old veteran Cleveland politician, was reported in "fair" condition today in Cleveland Clinic hospital.

Bernstein, according to his doctors, was "holding his own" at the hospital after a week's illness.

The GOP campaigner has been a ward leader for 40 years and during that time has served as a councilman and city public service director.

Columbus Seeks Fire Starter

COLUMBUS, April 13—Columbus firemen tracked down clues to discover a firebug who apparently started nine consecutive fires in the downtown area yesterday, threatening for a time to start a major blaze.

Fire Chief Harry W. Caldwell said the fires which broke out behind business establishments were undoubtedly set by someone with a fire mania.

The chief said that each of the fires followed a similar pattern and that they broke out in sequence within 2 1/2 hours. He said the firebug must have had a car to reach the points scattered in a two-mile area.

Shuman and Service Director Elmer A. Keller answered:

"That's right."

Keller said iron pipe is "much harder to buy than new automobiles."

Wooster Issues Spray Bulletin

WOOSTER, April 13—Here is the daily spray bulletin from the Ohio agricultural experiment station:

Southern and Central Ohio apple scab fungus is at the maximum potential spore discharge stage.

Samples showed some empty perithecia discharged during last week's rain, but empty perithecia were not numerous enough to warrant a letup in the pre-blossom spray program.

Scab spores in the Van Wert, Wooster and Geauga areas are now maturing rapidly, but severe frost damage for low-lying delicious was reported by one cooperator in the Athens area. Peaches in low areas surrounding Cincinnati reportedly suffered some damage.

Rome has reached prepink in southern areas of the state, late delayed in central areas and green tip in the Wooster and Salem areas.

The interior of the cone of Popocatepetl, Mexican volcano, is almost pure sulphur.

while the plastic sawbones bobs the nose, shortens the chin and trims the ears of the mob ahead of you.

But in good time you, too, may have your face jacked up and rearranged so that you will look human to saloon-side audiences.

First information that video stars are having their faces retooled for television came through the current issue of Variety.

THE VIDEO press departments of both the Columbia and the National Broadcasting systems shyly admit that what the television camera does to the average kisser shouldn't happen to Boris Karloff.

Teen Tips

Here's an S.O.S. from a boy who wants to know how to keep absence from making her heart grow fonder—of somebody else. "Dear Miss Williams: "Will you please to try to explain how a boy in a preparatory school can keep his best girl friend liking him best, never forgetting to write to him. If you can't, please tell me the best way to get another one!"

Ans.—1. Be yourself. Join the fun wherever you are; don't just sit back and expect your date to entertain you. Don't try to be an Alan Ladd.

2. Remember your manners. Girls like to have doors opened for them; like to hear that you enjoyed the date and had fun, too.

3. Admire her clothes occasionally and tell her how nice she looks.

4. Call for her at her house; be polite to her family.

5. Don't ask, "Are you doing anything Friday night?" Give a definite invitation—"Would you like to go to a movie Friday night?"

6. Some formal dances call for a corsage. Ask her what color her dress will be so the colors won't clash.

7. Write to her regularly when you are away. Keep it friendly, newsy and be interested in her doings. Skip the mush; her little brother might read it.

People Who Pay Don't Want War

CLEVELAND, April 13—Joseph B. Keenan, former Cleveland attorney and chief prosecutor of Tojo and his accomplices, believes that the people who pay the "frightful bill" of war neither want nor make wars.

Keenan, speaking before the Cleveland Bar Association yesterday, said that the "new order" that waged aggressive war was an order of gangsters and ruffians having "no concept whatsoever of the dignity of the human personality."

Localite Passes Engineer Test

Kenneth O'Neal Smith of East Ohio street was among 386 applicants who successfully passed examinations conducted by the Ohio state board of registration for professional engineers and surveyors.

Of the total applicants 115 engineers and 13 surveyors received full registration, while 244 received registration as engineers in training and 14 as surveyors in training. Smith was among the group registered as engineers in training.

Naturally, as TV spreads from saloon to saloon, more and more of its performers are going to put themselves in the garage for vital overhaul and repair work.

The television camera is a far more cruel taskmaster than the motion picture camera, both agreed. It magnifies every blemish. It makes a mountain out of a mole. It adds pounds to its victims in the most unwanted spots and can instantly turn a sweater girl into a bloomer girl.

A Mr. Vic Damone has just had a tuck taken in his nose for television's sake, and also a Mr. Henry Slade of the Slade Brothers. Apparently the other Slade brothers are confident they will do as nature made them.

The Misses Barry, a singing team currently performing at the Chez Paree, a Chicago retreat not to be confused with Carnegie Hall, have also had their schnozzes trimmed, in case television lightning hits.

Other artists like Milton Berle and Henry Morgan, just like to be pretty. These two outstanding video stars had their noses bobbed and their profiles Barrymored years ago when video was scarcely a gleam in a bartender's eye.

The gentlemen at both CBS and NBC, in referring to Morgan and Berle, could only surmise that the duo was (1) either the aesthetic type or (2) had a premonition of television almost as soon as did the inventor.

JACK DEMPSEY, a non-video performer, had his nose sewed back on and prettied-up years ago. But observers lay that to the hazards of his profession rather than any pre-vision of television-to-come.

Also, it was furtively revealed by CBS and NBC, nothing, either makeup or plastic surgery, will conceal a hang-over from the television camera. A video actor with a hangover simply looks as if he had picked up the face on the barroom floor and gotten behind it. Nothing will help him.

Tammany Opposes FDR Jr.'s Race

NEW YORK, April 13—It is Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. against Tammany Hall for the congressional seat of the late Sol

Bloom. The lines were drawn last night when Tammany nominated Municipal Court Judge Benjamin Shalleck for the traditionally Democratic district on Manhattan's west side. Young Roosevelt was kept in the race with the backing of Robert B. La Follette, a Tammany leader for the district who bolted from the parent organization. Roosevelt already has been assured the nomination by New York's Liberal Party. He said last night that he would refuse the endorsement of the American Labor Party even if it were tendered to him, insisting he is opposed to Communism and Communist-supporters.

First information that video stars are having their faces retooled for television came through the current issue of Variety.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Here's an S.O.S. from a boy who wants to know how to keep absence from making her heart grow fonder—of somebody else. "Dear Miss Williams:

"Will you please try to explain how a boy in a preparatory school can keep his best girl friend liking him best, never forgetting to write to him. If you can't, please tell me the best way to get another one!"

Ans.—1. Be yourself. Join the fun wherever you are; don't just sit back and expect your date to entertain you. Don't try to be an Alan Ladd.

2. Remember your manners. Girls like to have doors opened for them; like to hear that you enjoyed the date and had fun, too.

3. Admire her clothes occasionally and tell her how nice she looks.

4. Call for her at her house; be polite to her family.

5. Don't ask, "Are you doing anything Friday night?" Give a definite invitation—"Would you like to go to a movie Friday night?"

6. Some formal dances call for a corsage. Ask her what color her dress will be so the colors won't clash.

7. Write to her regularly when you are away. Keep it friendly, newsy and be interested in her doings. Skip the mush; her little brother might read it.

People Who Pay Don't Want War

CLEVELAND, April 13—Joseph B. Keenan, former Cleveland attorney and chief prosecutor of Tojo and his accomplices, believes that the people who pay the "frightful bill" of war neither want nor make wars.

Keenan, speaking before the Cleveland Bar Association yesterday, said that the "new order" that waged aggressive war was an order of gangsters and ruffians having "no concept whatsoever of the dignity of the human personality."

Localite Passes Engineer Test

Kenneth O'Neal Smith of East Ohio street was among 386 applicants who successfully passed examinations conducted by the Ohio state board of registration for professional engineers and surveyors.

Of the total applicants 115 engineers and 13 surveyors received full registration, while 244 received registration as engineers in training and 14 as surveyors in training. Smith was among the group registered as engineers in training.

Naturally, as TV spreads from saloon to salon, more and more of its performers are going to put themselves in the garage for vital overhaul and repair work.

The television camera is a far more cruel taskmaster than the motion picture camera, both agreed. It magnifies every blemish. It makes a mountain out of a mole. It adds pounds to its victims in the most unwanted spots and can instantly turn a sweater girl into a bloomer girl.

A Mr. Vic Damone has just had a tuck taken in his nose for television's sake, and also a Mr. Henry Slade of the Slade Brothers. Apparently the other Slade brothers are confident they will do as nature made them.

The Misses Barry, a singing team currently performing at the Chez Paree, a Chicago retreat not to be confused with Carnegie Hall, have also had their schnozzles trimmed, in case television lightning hits.

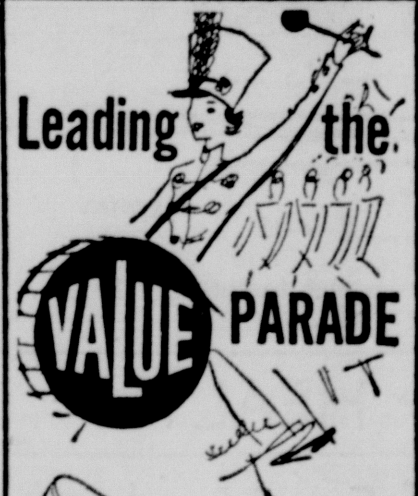

Other artists like Milton Berle and Henry Morgan, just like to be pretty. These two outstanding video stars had their noses bobbed and their profiles Barrymored years ago when video was scarcely a gleam in a bartender's eye.

The gentlemen at both CBS and NBC, in referring to Morgan and Berle, could only surmise that the duo was (1) either the aesthetic type or (2) had a premonition of television almost as soon as did the inventor.

JACK DEMPSEY, a non-video performer, had his nose sewed back on and prettified years ago. But observers lay that to the hazards of his profession rather than any pre-vision of television-to-come.

Also, it was furtively revealed by CBS and NBC, nothing, either makeup or plastic surgery, will conceal a hang-over from the television camera. A video actor with a hangover simply looks as if he had picked up the face on the barroom floor and gotten behind it. Nothing will help him.

Tammany Opposes FDR Jr.'s Race

NEW YORK, April 13—It is Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. against Tammany Hall for the congressional seat of the late Sol Bloom.

The lines were drawn last night when Tammany nominated Municipal Court Judge Benjamin Shalleck for the traditionally Democratic district on Manhattan's west side.

Young Roosevelt was kept in the race with the backing of Robert B. La Follette, a Tammany leader for the district who bolted from the parent organization.

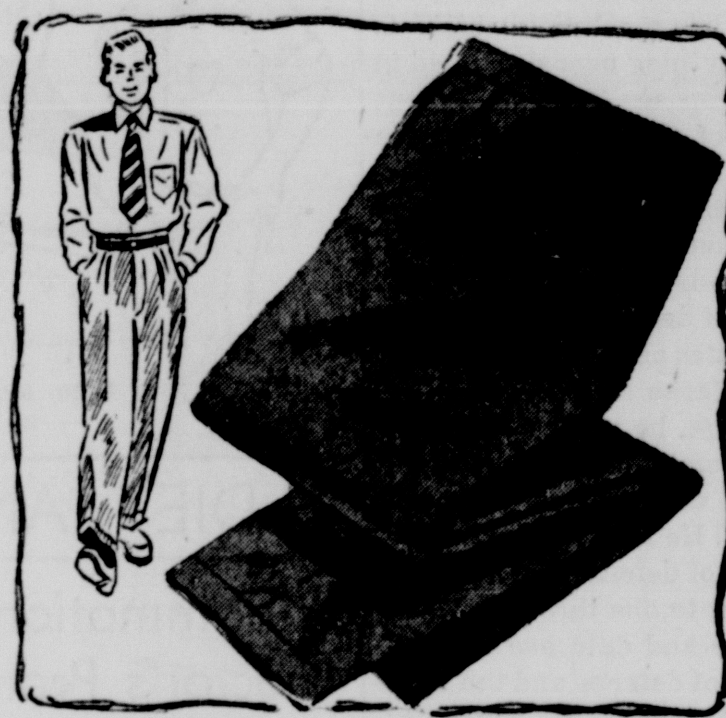

Roosevelt already has been assured the nomination by New York's Liberal Party. He said last night that he would refuse the endorsement of the American Labor Party even if it were tendered to him, insisting he is opposed to Communism and Communist-supporters.

ELECTION QUESTION

WHEN Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. decided to run for Congress in New York's 20th district, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sol Bloom, he stirred up an old constitutional question. Should a congressman necessarily live in the district he represents? Young Roosevelt does not live in the district whose seat he seeks. The district is in New York City, and he lives on Long Island. Other candidates for the Democratic nomination are attacking him on that score.

The federal Constitution clearly does not stand in his way. Its sole requirement is that congressmen must live in the state in which they are elected. It is largely custom which generally dictates that a congressman is the representative of a local area, and will do a better job of it if he lives in that area and knows its special problems.

Massachusetts has occasionally departed from this custom. In 1910 the Cape Cod district, at a special election, chose a Boston manufacturer, Eugene N. Foss, who went on from this triumph to the governorship.

In England there is no restriction at all. Otherwise the nation would lose the services of many of its present leaders who have been defeated at home. Had our American residential rule been in force there, Winston Churchill's political career would have ended back in 1908, when he was defeated at Manchester. He found a seat in another part of the island, and continued to hold office, to the nation's great advantage.

Contrasting the English custom with the American brings up the question of which is more productive of good government. The English system helps to keep the strongest leaders of each party in Parliament, but the American system keeps Congress closer to the people. Who can say which is best?

A STRONGER VOICE

THE House Appropriations Committee has recommended that the operating fund for the Voice of America be increased. This is the agency which spreads authoritative information about the United States over the rest of the world, by means of radio. The Voice has come in for a goodly share of criticism from time to time, and seems to have profited by it. There is now rather general agreement that it is doing an important job in telling the American story to peoples who ought to hear it.

Swimming is perhaps the finest sport in the world for those who understand it, but it is also one of the most hazardous for those not well trained, or lightly taking foolish risks. It is surprising how easily a strong swimmer can drown if he is careless. As summer comes, it is well to learn from wise swimmers and take no foolish chances.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Unification of the armed forces, to which the former secretary of defense, James Forrestal, devoted himself so assiduously, failed. The failure was due to three causes: 1. An inadequate law; 2. Non-cooperation on the part of the three branches of the services; 3. Unwillingness of the President to enforce cooperation.

In despair, General Eisenhower was co-opted from his presidency of Columbia university to preside over the joint chiefs of staff. But the law which brought this body into being gives to each chief of staff precisely the authority which makes the scheme unworkable. Frank Pace Jr., director of the budget, which clears legislation for the President, has a solution which is as dangerous as anything ever projected in this country. He proposes the appointment by the President of the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, who shall take precedence over all other officers of the armed services. In addition, he shall act as the principal military adviser to the President and the secretary of defense and shall perform such other duties as the President and the secretary of defense may direct.

In simple language, he makes the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, an unelected official, a military officer, the strongest man in the country. He reduces the authority of the secretary of defense. He gives the power of enactment to one through whom information, advice and data are channeled to the secretary of defense and the President. This proposal has all the characteristics of incipient Napoleonism.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, who prepared the task force report on defense for the Hoover commission, faced this issue squarely in testifying before a congressional committee. He said:

"A few of the witnesses before our committee recommended the Prussian type of military organization with the conventional chief of staff supported by a general staff.

"I need not discuss the significance of the highest seniority in the military establishment. We all know what that means and what overwhelming influence it carries with it. The relationship of 'principal military adviser' to our civilian commander-in-chief and to his principal civilian deputy in national security matters, the secretary of defense, is a further tremendous power. I venture the opinion that the President and the secretary would be very hesitant about overruling this man's advice in military matters. Each time they did so they would not only be taking huge responsibility in a field in which they were not expert, but they would impair his position and prestige. This would not be the case if the President or the secretary's decisions were fortified by the advice of some or all of the heads of the three military services who, in turn, would be responsible to carry out their advice.

Inflammation of Eye Needs Doctor's Prompt Attention

By HERMAN N. BUDESEN, M.D.

NEARLY all diseases of the eye—serious as well as trifling—start with inflammation. This is a fact which everybody should know because neglect of a severe disorder of the eye may lead to permanent blindness.

It is true that in most cases inflammation of the eye is due to a simple, relatively harmless, condition but it may also be caused by much more threatening ones.

Making Diagnosis

These conditions may sometimes be mistaken for conjunctivitis, which is an inflammation of the lining membrane. In helping to make a diagnosis, it has been suggested by Dr. Edward P. Burch, of Minneapolis, that adrenalin chloride be dropped into the eye. This will cause a reduction of the conjunctivitis immediately, but will have no effect on the inflammation caused by iritis, or inflammation of the colored part of the eye, or glaucoma. In the latter condition, there is increased pressure of the fluid in the eyeball.

Conjunctivitis usually causes only slight discomfort. The patient feels as though there is something in his eye. Usually there is some discharge present. Examination under the microscope will show the type of infection present so that the proper type of treatment may be utilized, such as antiseptic preparations or the sulfonamide drugs. Iritis is exceedingly painful. The colored part of the eye becomes dull and the pupil may be irregular in shape.

Glaucoma also produces severe pain. The pupil may be larger than normal or oval shaped, the vision is interfered with, and rainbows are seen around lights.

Ulcer Forms

Sometimes an ulcer forms on the cornea or front part of the eyeball. This is known as ulcerative keratitis. This can be distinguished from conjunctivitis by putting a little fluorescein into the eye. This fluorescein outlines the ulcer on the cornea.

Persons who have eye inflammation should have a thorough study of the eye made promptly by an eye specialist. It is important that early diagnosis of severe eye disorders be made, so that permanent damage to the eye may be prevented.

Try, Stop Me

This railroad story from Santa Fe magazine concerns a young man who once found a five-dollar bill on the ties. From that time on, he never lifted his eyes from the ground while walking.

In the course of thirty years he accumulated 25,916 buttons, 52,172 pins, seven pennies, a bent back, and a sour, miserly disposition. He lost the glories of the light, the smiles of his friends, the beauties of nature, and opportunity to serve his fellow man and spread happiness.

And Have Not Love

By MARGARET NICHOLS

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
WHEN her hands went suddenly weak, and David took her in his arms and held her, Beatrice yielded, saying against him, "Whether knowingly or unknowingly, I do not know, but you lifted me up and out, out of myself so that I could see myself, and the unforgotten little pieces into which I had broken myself, so that I was no longer a whole woman a man could love."

He held her and said with astonishing calmness for one whose heart was beating so fast, "You are so much finer than you believe for admitting that you have been wrong. I wanted you, Beatrice. I wanted you as a child cries for the moon. Suppose you could give it to him, what would he do with it? I wanted you with no encumbrances, no marriage, no child, no other man. Just you. As if this were the Garden of Eden and not a highly complex modern society. That's how I've wanted you—so strongly you've colored everything I've done and seen but... but futilely just like the child crying for the moon."

He felt her stir in his arms when he said, "And I am by my very nature the last man in the world to break up a marriage and to break a child's heart by uprooting her."

Her lashes were wet when she looked at him. He took her face gently between his hands. "I don't love you, Beatrice. Love grows out of sharing passion, laughter, pain, all things human. And we would come to that if you did not so overwhelmingly love your husband."

"Because of all those things I have shared with him—good and bad, mad and sad, the plenty of poverty, the poverty of plenty—David, I am what my love for Porter and the riches of our marriage have made me. There is still a breach, a frightening breach. I could not let you go and not tell you that it is far from right with us. But because a marriage is a human relationship, it can be sick and it can be healed. If you've ever been very ill, you know the joy of convalescence, the slow return to strength, the world washed clean before your welcoming eyes. Oh, my dear..."

"And I shall do with you what I wish," he said. "I shall leave you, and I shall not see you again."

Her eyes assented though she said, "Let's not say goodbye."

"No, let's not. That implies a tragic finality and," he smiled at her, "there's nothing tragic about this or us, Beatrice. How could there be when we're both glad it happened, and we wouldn't have missed each other for anything? I'm not sorry that in America I met a beautiful woman, a deliciously desirable woman, and wanted her."

Holding out her hand Beatrice thought, I'm seeing him for the last time. I shall never see him again. It hurts a little because he's a wonderful person, and I am losing a benevolent friend.

She said, "Bless you. You are so nice, David."

His voice was warm and vibrant. "And you, Beatrice, and your husband, and your child, and your home. For all the things you are and will be."

She stood and watched him put on his topcoat and pull on his gloves. This is for memory, too, she thought. And then they looked at each other without any desire that this should be different from the way it was—and he closed the door quietly—and she was quite alone.

Six days later she wired Porter that she was leaving New York that afternoon and would be home by nine that evening. Yet even as the message was being spoken into the telephone she felt cheerless at the thought of leaving her motherly never very good, had changed astoundingly during the week when she had been with Cecily more constantly than she had ever been, and had been witness to her mother's brave determination not to lay the burden of sadness upon her friends. It was incredible that she had come so to respect and admire her mother, and to add to these attributes Cecily's regret that necessity had forced her not to include Beatrice among those who did not know.

And Cecily had given her a knowledge from which there was no escape. She had given her sorrow to do with what she must—to accept it and to live with it until she was strong enough to drive it out—because sorrow was as much a part of life as joy, and until you knew that and accepted it you were still a child.

The elevator man had gone with her bag and Cecily was waiting to say goodbye. They embraced, cheeks touching as women do, and Cecily smiled mischievously. "You really should have another child, darling. Listen to me, will you, I who always thought the little brats were calamitous blunders."

Which was Cecily's way of telling her that if she, Cecily, had had two children she would be twice as proud as she was now.

The smile that came over Beatrice's face was one that her mother, entirely free now of any self-obsession, understood.

"I hope, too," was all that Beatrice dared to say.

Once, while walking down the long corridor toward the elevator, she stopped and waved cheerily. And Cecily, her face illumined by that new inner radiance that had come to her through her love of the people who had loved and suffered her these many years, gave her an absurd little salute as her golden laughter floated down the still vaster corridor of time.

Only a few bedraggled travelers got off the train with Beatrice and walked through the old station to the waiting cabs. Beatrice wondered if they felt as she assuredly did an immediate lessening of tension to find themselves in a city where the paces were markedly slower, the cabs smaller, and the electric signs, in comparison with New York, meager and dull.

She gave the cab driver her address and settled back into the seat, and felt at once an unbearable longing for Marianne and Porter, and a renewed affection for the dignity of the old city. In twenty minutes I shall be home, she thought. And she visualized Porter opening the door, their voices quiet lest Marianne awaken. This was real while that which she had left was already somewhat blurred by distance. Hurry, she thought. Drive faster. For everyone in the world there is a door somewhere that opens into a sanctuary where voices are the sounds of love.

Yet when the cab stopped before the house, and she saw no welcoming light, her spirit shrank. Her hands trembled as she searched for money in her purse and her key.

"Don't look like nobody is here," the driver said at the unappealing darkness of the house.

Beatrice said him closed the door, picked up her bag, and walked up the crooked stair path.

He must have received my telegram, she thought. Then he knew I was coming home tonight. It is only a few minutes past nine, time for Marianne to be asleep, of course, but too early for Porter to go to bed.

Disappointment came over her in waves as she inserted the key and opened the door. She left the bag in the foyer, and went to the living room and switched on a lamp. The living room bore no sign of recent life. No one had been here tonight to smoke or read a newspaper or make a fire. Beatrice went over to the desk. Perhaps he had left a note. There was no note. There was nothing. Nothing. She turned away, switched off the lamp, went to the hall, picked up the bag and went upstairs in darkness to her room. That, too, failed to reveal the usual signs that Porter had come home and dressed before going out for the evening.

Frances will not hear me, she thought. She sleeps so soundly. She took off her coat and hat and put them in her closet. She did not know what possessed her to open the door of Porter's closet. She stood there looking at his innumerable suits hanging neatly on their hangers and at the rows of shoes beneath. Her eyes slowly roamed, and then they stopped, settling on a bare corner in the closet in which he usually kept the one piece of luggage he used for short business trips. It was gone. It would not be anywhere else because it was always here. And it was gone. He was gone.

Spain's Chance of Admission | Administration Deaf to Plea
To Atlantic Alliance Slender | Pact Should Include Spanish

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Demands of some Republicans that Spain be asked to join the North Atlantic Security Alliance as soon as member nations sign the pact and the Senate ratifies it are colliding with deaf administration ears.

GOP claims that a "rebuff" to Generalissimo Francisco Franco may alienate the Spanish dictator and steer him toward co-operation with Russia in the cold war are bluntly discredited. As far as the United States will go toward Spain in the next few months will be to return an ambassador to Madrid—that far and no further.

The CIO, AFL and other labor groups generally have condemned Franco's anti-labor policies. Influential "left-of-center" political groups have upbraided the Madrid regime as the "last relic of Fascism."

All this has contributed materially to the administration's "hands off" policy toward Spain.

Privately, administration sources say it is not necessary to coddle Franco. They are convinced that should the cold war become hot, he would take Spain into a conflict against Russia as quickly outside the Atlantic Pact as inside. The Spanish Civil war laid the foundation for an everlasting hatred of the Kremlin by Franco and his government.

● AIR COVER FOR RED CHINA—Russia has decided to divert a goodly number of its 20,000-plane Air Force to form an air cover over the Chinese Communist armies. This spells additional trouble for the Chinese Nationalists who have virtually no air force.

Gen. Claire Chennault, hero commander of the Flying Tigers who, he paid volunteers, stayed on the Japanese before World War II.

● DEVOUS JOHN L.—Coal operators read significance into John L. Lewis' order officially ending the two-week "memorial" work stoppage of 400,000 miners.

They believe it may ultimately be construed by Lewis as a 60-day notice to the government—as required by the Taft-Hartley law—of his desire to reopen the miners' contract. This would mean that negotiations for a new 1949 soft coal wage agreement might open May 24. The contract expires June 30.

Under the existing pact, Lewis has to give the operators 30 days' notice of termination of the contract. The T-H statute requires an extra 30 days' notice to the government. However, Lewis' bitter hatred of the labor statute leads him to shun direct compliance.

Instead, he might choose to regard his March 24 instructions to local unions of the United Mine Workers to stay away from work for two weeks as adequate compliance with the T-H notification provision.

● LONELY NEW AMBASSADOR—When Mrs. Vijaya Pandit, India's new ambassador to the United States, arrives in Washington, she will find few feminine colleagues in the diplomatic circle. Mrs. Pandit is the first woman to head a diplomatic mission in the United States.

Next ranking woman on the diplomatic list now is Margit Odessalshi, counselor at the Hungarian embassy. Strong cordiality between the two female diplomats is unlikely. Mrs. Pandit has served as India's ambassador to Moscow for more than a year. She became hostile to Russia and its satellites, of which Hungary is a leader.

The petite Indian woman may find more in common with Panama's Anita Ramirez, who recently became first secretary of the Panamanian embassy after a long career in Latin American diplomatic service.

● NEARLY all diseases of the eye—serious as well as trifling—start with inflammation. This is a fact which everybody should know because neglect of a severe disorder of the eye may lead to permanent blindness.

It is true that in most cases inflammation of the eye is due to a simple, relatively harmless, condition but it may also be caused by much more threatening ones.

These conditions may sometimes be mistaken for conjunctivitis, which is an inflammation of the lining membrane. In helping to make a diagnosis, it has been suggested by Dr. Edward P. Burch, of Minneapolis, that adrenalin chloride be dropped into the eye. This will cause a reduction of the conjunctivitis immediately, but will have no effect on the inflammation caused by iritis, or inflammation of the colored part of the eye, or glaucoma. In the latter condition, there is increased pressure of the fluid in the eyeball.

Conjunctivitis usually causes only slight discomfort. The patient feels as though there is something in his eye. Usually there is some discharge present. Examination under the microscope will show the type of infection present so that the proper type of treatment may be utilized, such as antiseptic preparations or the sulfonamide drugs. Iritis is exceedingly painful. The

Sometimes an ulcer forms on the cornea or front part of the eyeball. This is known as ulcerative keratitis. This can be distinguished from conjunctivitis by putting a little fluorescein into the eye. This fluorescein outlines the ulcer on the cornea.

Persons who have eye inflammation should have a thorough study of the eye made promptly by an eye specialist. It is important that early diagnosis of severe eye disorders be made, so that permanent damage to the eye may be prevented.

Resorcin and sulphur, made up into a lotion or ointment, have been found helpful. Sometimes a solution of borax is of value.

There is still a breach, a frightening breach. I could not let you go and not tell you that it is far from right with us. ELECTION QUESTION

WHEN Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. decided to run for Congress in New York's 20th district, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sol Bloom, he stirred up an old constitutional question. Should a congressman necessarily live in the district he represents? Young Roosevelt does not live in the district whose seat he seeks. The district is in New York City, and he lives on Long Island. Other candidates for the Democratic nomination are attacking him on that score.

The federal Constitution clearly does not stand in his way. Its sole requirement is that congressmen must live in the state in which they are elected. It is largely custom which generally dictates that a congressman is the representative of a local area, and will do a better job of it if he lives in that area and knows its special problems.

Massachusetts has occasionally departed from this custom. In 1910 the Cape Cod district, at a special election, chose a Boston manufacturer, Eugene N. Foss, who went on from this triumph to the governorship.

In England there is no restriction at all. Otherwise the nation would lose the services of many of its present leaders who have been defeated at home. Had our American residential rule been in force there, Winston Churchill's political career would have ended back in 1908, when he was defeated at Manchester. He found a seat in another part of the island, and continued to hold office, to the nation's great advantage.

Contrasting the English custom with the American brings up the question of which is more productive of good government. The English system helps to keep the strongest leaders of each party in Parliament, but the American system keeps Congress closer to the people. Who can say which is best?

A STRONGER VOICE

THE House Appropriations Committee has recommended that the operating fund for the Voice of America be increased. This is the agency which spreads authoritative information about the United States over the rest of the world, by means of radio. The Voice has come in for a goodly share of criticism from time to time, and seems to have profited by it. There is now rather general agreement that it is doing an important job in telling the American story to peoples who ought to hear it.

Swimming is perhaps the finest sport in the world for those who understand it, but it is also one of the most hazardous for those not well trained, or lightly taking foolish risks. It is surprising how easily a strong swimmer can drown if he is careless. As summer comes, it is well to learn from wise swimmers and take no foolish chances.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Unification of the armed forces, to which the former secretary of defense, James Forrestal, devoted himself so assiduously, failed. The failure was due to three causes: 1. An inadequate law; 2. Non-cooperation on the part of the three branches of the services; 3. Unwillingness of the President to enforce cooperation.

In despair, General Eisenhower was co-opted from his presidency of Columbia university to preside over the joint chiefs of staff. But the law which brought this body into being gives to each chief of staff precisely the authority which makes the scheme unworkable. Frank Pace Jr., director of the budget, which clears legislation for the President, has a solution which is as dangerous as anything ever projected in this country. He proposes the appointment by the President of the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, who shall take precedence over all other officers of the armed services. In addition, he shall act as the principal military adviser to the President and the secretary of defense and shall perform such other duties as the President and the secretary of defense may direct.

In simple language, he makes the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, an unelected official, a military officer, the strongest man in the country. He reduces the authority of the secretary of defense. He gives the power of enactment to one through whom information, advice and data are channeled to the secretary of defense and the President. This proposal has all the characteristics of incipient Napoleonism.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, who prepared the task force report on defense for the Hoover commission, faced this issue squarely in testifying before a congressional committee. He said:

"A few of the witnesses before our committee recommended the Prussian type of military organization with the conventional chief of staff supported by a general staff.

"I need not discuss the significance of the highest seniority in the military establishment. We all know what that means and what overwhelming influence it carries with it. The relationship of 'principal military adviser' to our civilian commander-in-chief and to his principal civilian deputy in national security matters, the secretary of defense, is a further tremendous power. I venture the opinion that the President and the secretary would be very hesitant about overruling this man's advice in military matters. Each time they did so they would not only be taking huge responsibility in a field in which they were not expert, but they would impair his position and prestige. This would not be the case if the President's or the secretary's decisions were fortified by the advice of some or all of the heads of the three military services who, in turn, would be responsible to carry out their advice.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
WHEN her hands were suddenly weak, and David took her in his arms and held her, Beatrice yielded, saying against him, "Whether knowingly or unknowingly, I do not know, but you lifted me up and out of myself so that I could see myself, and the unfinished little pieces into which I had broken myself, so that I was no longer a whole woman a man could love."

He held her and said with astonishing calmness for one whose heart was beating so fast, "You are so much finer than you believe for admitting that you have been wrong. I wanted you, Beatrice. I wanted you as a child cries for the moon. Suppose you could give it to him, what would he do with it? I wanted you with no encumbrances, no marriage, no child, no other man. Just you. As if this were the Garden of Eden and not a highly complex modern society. That's how I've wanted you—so strongly you've colored everything I've done and seen but... but futilely just like the child crying for the moon."

He felt her stir in his arms when he said, "And I am by my very nature the last man in the world to break up a marriage and to break a child's heart by uprooting her."

Her lashes were wet when she looked at him. He took her face gently between his hands. "I don't love you, Beatrice. Love grows out of sharing passion, laughter, pain, all things human. And we would come to that if you did not so overwhelmingly love your husband."

"And I shall do with you what I wish," he said. "I shall leave you, and I shall not see you again."

Her eyes assented though she said, "Let's not say goodbye."

"No, let's not. That implies a tragic finality and," he smiled at her, "there's nothing tragic about this or us, Beatrice. How could there be when we're both glad it happened, and we wouldn't have missed each other for anything? I'm not sorry that in America I met a beautiful woman, a deliciously desirable woman, and wanted her."

Holding out her hand Beatrice thought, "I'm seeing him for the last time. I shall never see him again. It hurts a little because to follow mine own teaching—William Shakespeare."

Which was Cecily's way of telling her that if she, Cecily, had had two children she would be twice as proud as she was now. The smile that came over Beatrice's face was one that her mother, entirely free now of any self-obsession, understood.

"I hope, too," was all that Beatrice dared to say.

Once, while walking down the long corridor toward the elevator, she stopped and waved cheerily. And Cecily, her face illumined by that new inner radiance that had come to her through her love of the people who had loved and suffered her these many years, gave her an absurd little salute as her golden laughter floated down the still vaster corridor of time.

he's a wonderful person, and I am losing a benevolent friend. She said, "Bless you. You are so nice, David."

His voice was warm and vibrant. "And you, Beatrice, and your husband, and your child, and your home. For all the things you are and will be."

She stood and watched him put on his topcoat and pull on his gloves. This is for memory, too, she thought. And then they looked at each other without any desire that this should be different from the way it was—and he closed the door quietly—and she was quite alone.

Six days later she wired Porter that she was leaving New York that afternoon and would be home by nine that evening. Yet even as the message was being spoken into the telephone she felt cheerless at the thought of leaving her mother. For their relationship, certainly never very good, had changed astoundingly during the week when she had been with Cecily more constantly than she had ever been, and had been witness to her mother's brave determination not to lay the burden of sadness upon her friends. It was incredible that she had come so to respect and admire her mother, and to add to these attributes Cecily's regret that necessity had forced her not to include Beatrice among those who did not know.

And Cecily had given her a knowledge from which there was no escape. She had given her sorrow to do with what she must—to accept it and to live with it until she was strong enough to drive it out—because sorrow was as much a part of life as joy, and until you knew that and accepted it you were still a child.

The elevator man had gone with her bag and Cecily was waiting to say goodbye. They embraced, cheeks touching as women do, and Cecily smiled mischievously.

"You really should have another child, darling. Listen to me, will you, I who always thought the little brats were calamitous blunders."

Which was Cecily's way of telling her that if she, Cecily, had had two children she would be twice as proud as she was now.

He must have received my telegram, she thought. Then he knew I was coming home tonight. It is only a few minutes past nine, time for Marianne to be asleep, of course, but too early for Porter to go to bed.

Disappointment came over her in waves as she inserted the key and opened the door. She left the bag in the foyer, and went to the living room and switched on a lamp. The living room bore no sign of recent life. No one had been here tonight to smoke or read a newspaper or make a fire. Beatrice went over to the desk. Perhaps he had left a note. There was no note. There was nothing. Nothing. She turned away, switched off the lamp, went to the hall, picked up the bag and went upstairs in darkness to her room.

That, too, failed to reveal the usual signs that Porter had come home and dressed before going out for the evening.

Frances will not hear me, she thought. She sleeps too soundly. She took off her coat and hat and put them in her closet. She did not know what possessed her to open the door of Porter's closet. She stood there looking at his innumerable suits hanging neatly on their hangers and at the rows of shoes beneath. Her eyes slowly roamed, and then they stopped, settling on a bare corner in the closet in which he usually kept the one piece of luggage he used for short business trips. It was gone. It would not be anywhere else because it was always here. And it was gone. He was gone.

● DEVILOUS JOHN L.—Coal operators read significance into John L. Lewis' order officially ending the two-week "memorial" work stoppage of 400,000 miners.

They believe it may ultimately be construed by Lewis as a 60-day notice to the government—as required by the Taft-Hartley law—of his desire to reopen the miners' contract. This would mean that negotiations for a new 1949 soft coal wage agreement might open May 24. The contract expires June 30.

Under the existing pact, Lewis has to give the operators 30 days' notice of termination of the contract. The T-H statute requires an extra 30 days' notice to the government. However, Lewis' bitter hatred of the labor statue leads him to shun direct compliance.

Instead, he might choose to regard his March 24 instructions to local unions of the United Mine Workers to stay away from work for two weeks as adequate compliance with the T-H modification provision.

● LONELY NEW AMBASSADOR—When Mrs. Vijaya Pahlit, India's new ambassador to the United States, arrives in Washington, she will find few feminine colleagues in the diplomatic circle. Mrs. Pahlit is the first woman to head a diplomatic mission in the United States.

Next ranking woman on the diplomatic list now is Margit Odessalshi, counselor at the Hungarian embassy. Strong cordiality between the two female diplomats is unlikely. Mrs. Pahlit has served as India's ambassador to Moscow for more than a year. She became hostile to Russia and its satellites, of which Hungary is a leader.

The petite Indian woman may find more in common with Panama's Anita Ramirez, who recently became first secretary of the Panamanian embassy after a long career in Latin American diplomatic service.

Circus Motif Is Good Stunt For Parties

This is the week of the big circus. From now on through the summer, it'll be circus time somewhere in this broad land.

Children are talking circus and will be for some time to come. In fact, the circus is a prime favorite among juvenile topics of conversation all year around.

Party planners say if there is a children's party coming up, whether the occasion's a birthday, a holiday, or any other day that seems to call for a celebration, the small guests will be delighted with a party refreshment table planned around the circus theme.

Suggestions for serving the party goodies circus-fashion include a parade of animal crackers around a circus party cake. Bottled soft drinks may be turned into clowns by the use of paper cups, colored sticker seals and paper cuffs around the neck. Circus party favors may be made by using paper cups and filling these with hard candy and presided over by a smiling clown.

Another suggestion was to fashion ice cream balls with raisin eyes, bits of cherry for nose and mouth to make clown heads and faces. Inverted ice cream cones may be used for clown hats. These are then turned upside down to be eaten. Candy sticks striped in bright colors may be arranged like tent poles of the circus over a dish of ice cream, while a toy animal might be used to mark places at the table.

Evening Dress No Shield,
Nuernberg Court Proves

NUERNBERG, April 13—A precedent establishing the fact that it is entirely possible for a trained diplomat in striped trousers and cutaway coat to wage aggressive warfare has been written into the records.

In the badly-lighted, marble-lined old palace of justice in ruined Nuernberg, a United States military tribunal handed down a verdict of guilty against Baron Ernst von Weizsacker and four other men whom Adolf Hitler entrusted with vital tasks in his war against the world.

The trials of these five men attracted scant attention when compared to those of Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and his colleagues and collaborators on the topmost rung of the Nazi hierarchy.

But they were even more important in one respect. They cut deep at the heart of the German foreign office, that holdover from Prussian imperialist days which Hitler put to his own advantage in a shrewd manner that convinced the defendants of their own innocence.

VON WEIZSACKER, an old-line Junker who knew political power on Germany's inside track when Hitler was sweeping streets in Vienna, served for a long time as ambassador to the Holy See.

In this exalted capacity, far removed from the world at large, he was in a peculiarly able position to further Hitler's war aims and the Nuernberg court found him guilty of pursuing these to fruition against all the early victims of Nazi aggression.

The Nuernberg court, however, went to exceedingly great pains to show that in actual point of fact, these men were activists who took advantage of their high positions to consummate a carefully-laid program of aggression in which they played important roles.

It is a noteworthy fact that Hitler's plans for world domination eliminated no personalities who might conceivably be of use to him.

The only nearly-successful plot against him was engineered by a titled group of Junkers who saw Germany being led to destruction. These men paid for the conspiracy with their lives.

But there is no record of the

His conviction means mainly that evening dress is no shield for punishment by legal bodies seeking to eradicate the politico-military combines that thrive on war.

EVEN DIPLOMATS GUILTY

Evening Dress No Shield, Nuernberg Court Proves

NUERNBERG, April 13—A precedent establishing the fact that it is entirely possible for a trained diplomat in striped trousers and cutaway coat to wage aggressive warfare has been written into the records.

In the badly-lighted, marble-lined old palace of justice in ruined Nuernberg, a United States military tribunal handed down a verdict of guilty against Baron Ernst von Weizsacker and four other men whom Adolf Hitler entrusted with vital tasks in his war against the world.

The trials of these five men attracted scant attention when compared to those of Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and his colleagues and collaborators on the topmost rung of the Nazi hierarchy.

But they were even more important in one respect. They cut deep at the heart of the German foreign office, that holdover from Prussian imperialist days which Hitler put to his own advantage in a shrewd manner that convinced the defendants of their own innocence.

VON WEIZSACKER, an old-line Junker who knew political power on Germany's inside track when Hitler was sweeping streets in Vienna, served for a long time as ambassador to the Holy See.

In this exalted capacity, far removed from the world at large, he was in a peculiarly able position to further Hitler's war aims and the Nuernberg court found him guilty of pursuing these to fruition against all the early victims of Nazi aggression.

The Nuernberg court, however, went to exceedingly great pains to show that in actual point of fact, these men were activists who took advantage of their high positions to consummate a carefully-laid program of aggression in which they played important roles.

It is a noteworthy fact that Hitler's plans for world domination eliminated no personalities who might conceivably be of use to him.

The only nearly-successful plot against him was engineered by a titled group of Junkers who saw Germany being led to destruction. These men paid for the conspiracy with their lives.

But there is no record of the

Fluorescent Tube Danger Cited By Sheriff Here

Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff has issued a warning against the practice of tossing old fluorescent lighting tubes out with the trash.

The practice is dangerous not only to trash collectors but to children who have been known to salvage them from trash boxes and use them for fencing foils or baseball bats according to National Safety Council.

The danger arises from the presence of beryllium compounds with which the tubes are coated.

Principle way in which humans can be affected by the beryllium is by inhalation of the dusts, slow healing of cuts in which the chemical is present and by inhalation of mercury vapor arising from broken tubes.

SHERIFF RADCLIFF said the tubes may be safely broken if placed in a wet burlap sack, which then should be disposed of without opening. Longer tubes, such as the eight foot lengths, may be broken by using a long pole. The debris should be shoveled up.

He said that in addition to sustaining cuts from breaking one of these tubes, there is danger of powder entering any cuts or wounds the individual may have.

A recent medical case cited by National Safety Council involved a girl worker who suffered a cut on the hand from a broken light tube. Beryllium compound was imbedded in the hand, which resisted treatment for a year and healed only after surgery.

The Slimline tubes being produced by the local General Electric plant do not contain the poisonous compound, Ed Grigg, manager, said.

World Starve? All Bunk, Claim

COLUMBUS, April 13—Farmer-Novelist Louis Bromfield told the annual meeting of the Columbus chapter of Friends of the Land Monday that the world can feed itself any time it wants to.

Bromfield said the theory that the world faces starvation was "bunk." He explained:

"If Ohio could be put on an ideal agricultural basis, the state could produce three times the amount of food it does today. There is no excuse for a bad farmer. In a generation or less there'll be no bad farmers in Ohio—They'll be economically sound."

Kindling Fire With Kerosene Kills 2 Tots

CINCINNATI, April 13—Two young children were burned to death and four other members of their family were slightly injured, the father critically, yesterday as fire gutted their four-room suburban Cincinnati home.

Madeira fire officials said Billy and Tommy Ruud, ages 3 and 4 respectively, were burned beyond recognition when flames ripped through their frame home after their father, Ray, tried to kindle a fire with kerosene.

Two other children, Jimmy, 2, and Doris, six months, were burned slightly and were taken to a hospital suffering from shock.

The mother, Mrs. Thelma Ruud, was burned about the face and hands as she carried four of her six children to safety. The children who escaped uninjured were Roger, 6, and Charlene, 3.

Neighbors said Billy and Tommy were sleeping in beds nearest the stove.

Obituary

Charles Milton, son of James and Mary Dickerson, was born in Pickaway County, Ohio, March 26, 1870, and departed this life April 2, 1944, at the age of seventy-nine years and seven days.

On the 11th day of April, 1895, he was united in marriage to Fleta Nell Lind, who still survives.

For a short time he was a teacher in the public schools of the county, but soon changed his occupation to that of farmer. As a farmer he believed in the spirit of cooperation and joined with his neighbors in seeking improvements in the field of agriculture. What ever success he may have had in this endeavor is known best to those who served with him. To this end he became a member of the local Grange. He held membership in Scioto Grange, the Pickaway County Pomona Grange, the State and the National Grange. He was also a member of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau.

At an early age he identified himself with the Methodist Church, and at the time of his death was a member of the Dayton Methodist Church, the one in which his father and mother had worshipped.

Besides his wife he leaves two brothers, Frank and Harry, two half-brothers, Andrew and William Willoughby, and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday, April 14, at the Dayton Methodist Church.

Burial will be in the Dayton cemetery.

Funeral home, DeLong's Plant Garden, South Main St., Kingston.

Tiger '9' Shuts Out Wilmington

George Morris Hurls Two-Hitter

Circleville Tiger baseball team opened its South Central Ohio League season Tuesday by racking up a 10-0 shutout over Wilmington.

Tiger Pitcher George Morris provided the margin of victory for the locals, using his bugg-whip right arm to whiff 14 of the Wilmington batsmen and another single in the third.

Morris had near-perfect control in the encounter, allowing none of the Wilmington crew to reach first on a walk. He was substantially backed up by his teammates in the match, when they tallied up nine hits, two of them doubles.

Harold Hill and John Valentine swung the long bats in the game to rap out the extra-base hits. One of the hits off Morris was a stinging double, earned by Wilmington's left-fielder Ewbank.

IN THE FIRST inning of play, Hill singled and advanced to second when Dick Hartinger was hit by the pitcher. Both runners scored on an error by the Wilmington shortstop, who let Abe Rihl's drive bounce through him into centerfield.

Rihl advanced to third base on the error, and scored shortly after on a wild pitch, giving the locals a three-run advantage in the first frame.

The locals were blanked in the second frame, but tallied another single in the third.

Following a scoreless fourth inning, the CHS'ers drove in singles in both the fifth and sixth rounds, and wound up the game with a four-run spree in the final.

Circleville fielders matched their pitcher's outstanding performance in the contest by playing errorless ball.

Circleville previously was shut out 4-0 by London. Its second game of the season, with Chillicothe, was called because of darkness.

The Tiger batsmen had additional incentive during their SCO league opener Tuesday when Coach John Daugherty announced it was his birthday.

ALTHOUGH NO AGE was mentioned, the Tiger pilot admitted his boys fell down on him, failing to score a third as many runs as he had years.

The Tigers will play their first home game in Ted Lewis Park at 4 p. m. Tuesday against Dublin.

Globetrotters End 'Fair' Season; Lose 5 Games In 151 Cage Starts

CHICAGO, April 13—They needed six adding machines to do it, but they finally put to rest another season for the Harlem Globetrotters.

Not counting 14 victories compiled in the space of five days and thousands of miles of air travel during their January tour of Alaska, the Trotters had a regular-season record of 146 victories and five defeats.

For the 22 seasons that basketball's court jesters have now been operative, they have scored 3,184 victories as opposed to 235 defeats and one tie.

Abe Saperstein, the little guy who founded, owns, coaches and manages the outfit, mopped his forehead and said it was quite a year.

"You sure got disappointed when you lose," he said, "but then, we've never had an undefeated season."

THE TROTTERS' losses started with a 58-54 defeat at the hands of the Philadelphia Spas of the American pro league at Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 23. They had won 19 straight previous to that, and subsequently they won another 114 before dropping a 66-53 decision to Minneapolis of the BAA March 14.

After that, the Trotters lost three out of six games played against an all-star college potpourri that included Jack Kerris of Loyola, Leo Barnhorst, Jim O'Halloran and Paul Gordon of Notre Dame, John Oldham of Western Kentucky and Malcolm McMullan of Xavier.

The three games the Trotters lost to the stars were settled by a total margin of five points; the three they won saw an aggregate margin of 54 points.

Saperstein, at long last, is planning a vacation, but he won't be able to get going until he confers with Bill Veeck, the Cleveland Indian man. Saperstein is Veeck's scout for Negro talent; all told, he's placed 11 men in the Cleveland system, including the great Satchel Paige, and there are fine plans for the future.

"This Kid Easter," Saperstein said, "the one the Indians had but sent down to San Diego; you keep your eye on him. He may be with the Indians yet."

Easter, Saperstein agreed, is no better than average at fielding.

"But he's a natural long-ball hitter," Ame added. "He'll hit the ball out of any ball park ever built."

What was Easter hitting when Abe saw him last?

Saperstein looked pained.

"Only," he confessed, "451."

Roundup Of All Sports

"Into each life some rain must fall," chirruped the gay, irrepressible Mr. Longfellow, who forgot to mention that occasionally comes the eau de cologne, just to make everything jake.

That's, approximately, what Bob Porterfield represented to the dismayed Yankees today—the saccharine in Manager Casey Stengel's cup of bitter woe.

It seemed filled to overflowing when Joe DiMaggio left Fort Worth, Tex., yesterday with one foot on a pulley, ticketed for Johns Hopkins hospital and further tinkering with his temperamental right heel.

Whereas, Porterfield stayed behind to pitch the second no-hitter in training camp history, giving the Yankees a 10-0 win and the Fort Worth (Texas League) Cats a slight touch of ague. Unlike Murry Dickson's original version last Spring, this one only went eight innings, because of an approaching train connection.

But the Cats didn't mind. Only three of them reached base—two on errors, one on a walk. Only three hit to the outfield. Seven fanned.

Lake Placid, N. Y., which doesn't believe in being caught with its skirts down, is doing its Olympic "shopping" early and apparently doesn't care who knows it.

The Adirondack resort wants the Winter Olympics in 1956 and started after them yesterday with forthright American enterprise—from the floor of Congress in Washington.

The modus operandi was a pair of Senate and House bills, authorizing Congress to drop everything and extend Lake Placid's invitation to the International Olympic Committee to return the '56 Winter games to their 1932 site.

Detroit is seeking that year's major Olympic championships, but in the old fashioned way. It is extending its own invitation.

Levi Jackson, first Negro team captain in the history of Yale football, is also its first casualty of Spring practice. The backfield ace will be side-lined for a week with a sprained ankle.

Spring exhibition returns:—Phillies beat Cincinnati Reds at Louisville, 4-0. Couple of exhumed characters named Ken Heintzelman and Ken Trinkle turned in a three-hitter. Boston Red Sox made it seven in a row over minor-league opposition with 10-4 win over Orioles in Baltimore.

Joe Dobson went all the way, got whacked for 10 hits. Browns had to go deep in the heart of Texas to find a potential "Patsy."

Even then, Sherman, Tex., of the Big State League, was prepared to stand no nonsense and proved it by taking the Browns into ninth behind a 2-all tie, finally yielding, 4-2.

Vulcan's Forge may be the toast of the nation in winning the recent $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap but that doesn't make him top-weight for the comparatively cheap Excelsior Handicap at Jamaica this weekend. According to pre-race statistics made public today, that distinction goes to Ben Whitaker's My Request at 126 pounds.

Vulcan's Forge has been assigned 123, followed by Better Self—a doubtful starter—at 121. The swift-running South American, Escadru, is in at 119.

DiMag Back In Clinic For 'Hot Heel'

Clipper To Miss Yankee Opener

BALTIMORE, Md., April 13—Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee outfielder, and his ailing right heel reentered Johns Hopkins hospital here this morning.

Joltin' Joe arrived at the hospital at 2:05 a. m. (EST) and went directly to his room without saying anything to waiting newsmen.

Dr. George Bennett, Johns Hopkins bone specialist who removed a "spur" from DiMaggio's heel last November, scheduled an examination for today.

The doctor described the current flareup in the Yankee Clipper's foot as a "hot heel" and said it will need no additional surgery. The injury will be treated with novacine and x-rays.

DiMaggio will remain in the hospital for about a week. He will miss next Tuesday's opening and probably will not play again for at least six weeks.

THERE ALSO is a possibility that the ailment may sideline him permanently.

Recurrent flareups in DiMaggio's heel since his operation have kept him out of action during most of the training season.

Joe aggravated the bone area anew last Saturday in Beaumont, Tex., during a slide in an exhibition game. He tried to play Sunday in Greenville and the following day in Dallas but was forced to leave both games after 2½ innings.

DiMaggio then flew to Washington from Texas and took a train to Johns Hopkins.

Lil Wesleyan Again Upsets OSU Baseballers

DELAWARE, April 13—Ohio State may be the team to beat in the Western Conference baseball loop, but Ohio Wesleyan is just the team that can do it.

The Delaware Bishops slid past the Buckeyes 7-6 yesterday, thanks to five errors by Buck Shortstop Bob Weygant and some nifty pitching from Brucksville Sophomore Nelson Reeves. It was the season's opener for Wesleyan, but it meant a 3-3 count for Buckeyes who took a Texas trip earlier in the year. The game also gave the Bishops a 2-1 edge over State in their last three games.

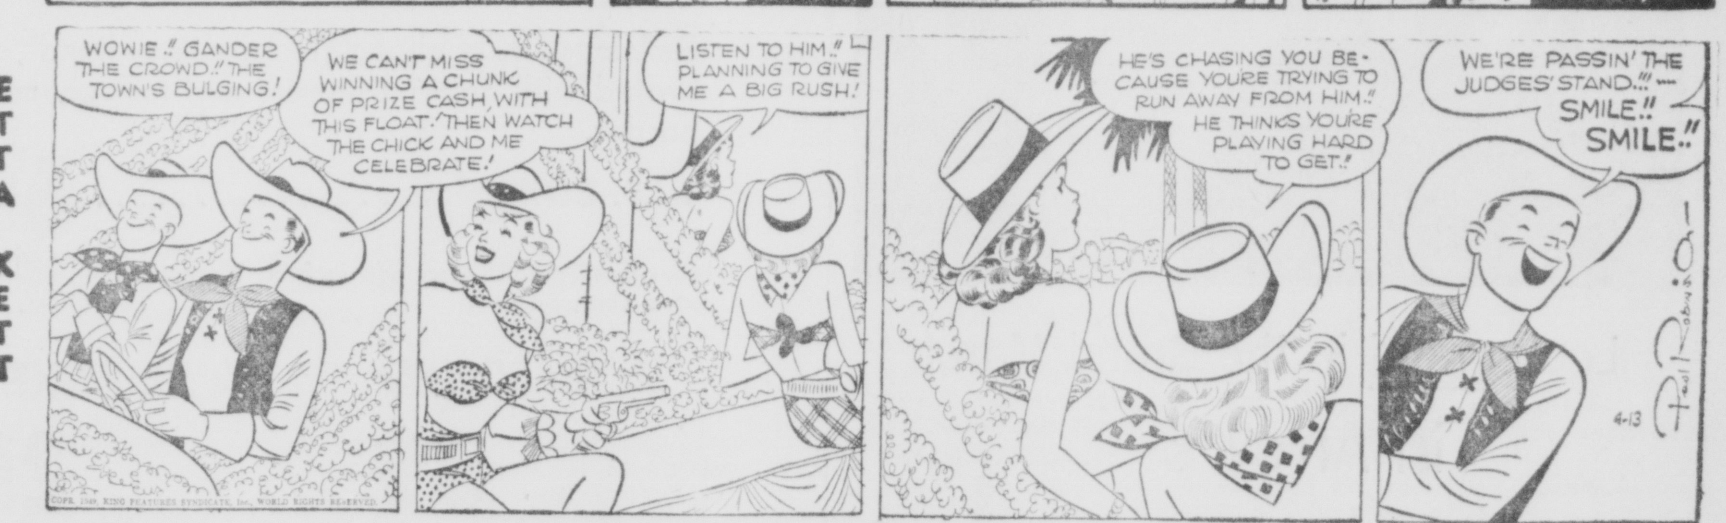

Reeves struck out four and walked five. He kept five singles and two doubles well spaced before he was relieved in the ninth by Bob Hart who stopped a two-run rally.

Dillard Tours Island Spots

NEW YORK, April 13—Olympic Champion Harrison Dillard and Reggie Pearman, NYU's leading middle distance man, were due to arrive at Georgetown, British Guiana, today for a series of three competitions there, beginning Saturday.

The remaining meets were scheduled for next Monday and Wednesday, after which Dillard was to continue the tour alone.

The world's hurdling record-holder, who turned sprinter to win the Olympic 100, planned to compete at Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 23, and in Jamaica, B.W.I., three days later.

Now We Know How Purdue Won

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 13—All ye manufacturers of sports equipment, beware of innovations.

A football historian at the University of Illinois reported today that the first Illini eleven—that of 1890—had "headgears made of pasteboard which resembled a Turkish fez and had a black rosette on the side" for the Purdue game that year. Purdue won, 62 to 0.

Circleville Tiger baseball team opened its South Central Ohio League season Tuesday by racking up a 10-0 shutout over Wilmington.

Tiger Pitcher George Morris provided the margin of victory for the locals, using his bugg-whip right arm to whiff 14 of the Wilmington batsmen and another single in the third.

Morris had near-perfect control in the encounter, allowing none of the Wilmington crew to reach first on a walk. He was substantially backed up by his teammates in the match, when they tallied up nine hits, two of them doubles.

Harold Hill and John Valentine swung the long bats in the game to rap out the extra-base hits. One of the hits off Morris was a stinging double, earned by Wilmington's left-fielder Ewbank.

In the first inning of play, Hill singled and advanced to second when Dick Hartinger was hit by the pitcher. Both runners scored on an error by the Wilmington shortstop, who let Abe Ruhl's drive bounce through him into centerfield.

Ruhl advanced to third base on the error, and scored shortly after on a wild pitch, giving the locals a three-run advantage in the first frame.

The locals were blanked in the second frame, but tallied another single in the third.

Following a scoreless fourth inning, the CHS'ers drove in singles in both the fifth and sixth rounds, and wound up the game with a four-run spree in the final.

Circleville fielders matched their pitcher's outstanding performance in the contest by playing errorless ball.

Circleville previously was shut out 4-0 by London. Its second game of the season, with Chillicothe, was called because of darkness.

The Tiger batsmen had additional incentive during their SCO league opener Tuesday when Coach John Daugherty announced it was his birthday.

ALTHOUGH NO AGE was mentioned, the Tiger pilot admitted his boys fell down on him, failing to score a third as many runs as he had years.

The Tigers will play their first home game in Ted Lewis Park at 4 p. m. Tuesday against Dublin.

Now We Know How Purdue Won

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 13—All eye manufacturers of sports equipment, beware of innovations.

A football historian at the University of Illinois reported today that the first Illini eleven—that of 1890—had "headgears made of pasteboard which resembled a Turkish fez and had a black rosette on the side" for the Purdue game that year. Purdue won, 62 to 0.

Globetrotters End 'Fair' Season; Lose 5 Games In 151 Cage Starts

CHICAGO, April 13 — They needed six adding machines to do it, but they finally put to rest another season for the Harlem Globetrotters.

Not counting 14 victories compiled in the space of five days and thousands of miles of air travel during their January tour of Alaska, the Trotters had a regular-season record of 146 victories and five defeats.

For the 22 seasons that basketball's court jesters have now been operative, they have scored 3,184 victories as opposed to 235 defeats and one tie.

Abe Saperstein, the little guy who founded, owns, coaches and manages the outfit, mopped his forehead and said it was quite a year.

"You sure get disappointed when you lose," he said, "but then, we've never had an undefeated season."

THE TROTTERS' losses started with a 58-54 defeat at the hands of the Philadelphia Sphas of the American pro league at Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 23. They had won 19 straight previous to that, and subsequently they won another 114 before dropping a 66-53 decision to Minneapolis of the BAA March 14.

After that, the Trotters lost three out of six games played against an all-star college pot-pourri that included Jack Kerris of Loyola, Leo Barnhorst, Jim O'Halloran and Paul Gordon of Notre Dame, John Oldham of Western Kentucky and Malcolm McMullan of Xavier.

The three games the Trotters lost to the stars were settled by a total margin of five points; the three they won saw an aggregate margin of 54 points.

Saperstein, at long last, is planning a vacation, but he won't be able to get going until he confers with Bill Veck, the Cleveland Indian man. Saperstein is Veck's scout for Negro talent; all told, he's placed 11 men in the Cleveland system, including the great Satchel Paige, and there are fine plans for the future.

"This Kid Easter," Saperstein said, "the one the Indians had but sent down to San Diego; you keep your eye on him. He may be with the Indians yet."

Easter, Saperstein agreed, is no better than average at fielding. "But he's a natural long-ball hitter," Ame added. "He'll hit the ball out of any ball park ever built."

What was Easter hitting when Abe saw him last? Saperstein looked pained. "Only," he confessed, ".451."

Levi Jackson, first Negro team captain in the history of Yale football, is also its first casualty of Spring practice. The backfield ace will be side-lined for a week with a sprained ankle.

Spring exhibition returns: Phillies beat Cincinnati Reds at Louisville, 4-0. Couple of exhumed characters named Ken Heintzelman and Ken Trinkle turned in a three-hitter. Boston Red Sox made it seven in a row over minor-league opposition with 10-4 win over Orioles in Baltimore.

Joe Dobson went all the way, got whacked for 10 hits. Browns had to go deep in the heart of Texas to find a potential "Patsy."

Even then, Sherman, Tex., of the Big State League, was prepared to stand no nonsense and proved it by taking the Browns into ninth behind a 2-all tie, finally yielding, 4-2.

Vulcan's Forge may be the toast of the nation in winning the recent $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap but that doesn't make him top-weight for the comparative cheap Excelsior Handicap at Jamaica this weekend.

According to pre-race statistics made public today, that distinction goes to Ben Whitaker's My Request at 126 pounds.

Vulcan's Forge has been assigned 123, followed by Better Self—a doubtful starter—at 121. The swift-running South American, Escadru, is in at 119.

Local Golfers Lose Medalist Test To North

Circleville high school golfers suffered their first defeat this season Tuesday when Columbus North took them to task 11-5 in medalist play.

Tom Eveland, top CHS golfer, maintained his position as head of the team in the match by posting an 81 for his 18 holes, lowest score of the contest.

Eveland posted a one-under-par birdie on the fifth hole of the first round to chalk up a 43, while scoring a lower 38 on the second round without the aid of an under-par hole.

Don Olney scored second low for the Tigers in the match with a 48 first round score, 40 second round tally for a total of 88. His effort netted him but 1/2 point of the possible four-points, however.

The Tigers are scheduled for a triangular match with Chillicothe at Lancaster Tuesday. The locals whipped both other teams in its season opener here last week.

Following are the scores by rounds and the total points awarded in the Tuesday medalist match:

DiMag Back In Clinic For 'Hot Heel'

Clipper To Miss Yankee Opener

BALTIMORE, Md., April 13—Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee outfielder, and his ailing right heel reentered Johns Hopkins hospital here this morning.

John J. arrived at the hospital at 2:05 a. m. (EST) and went directly to his room without saying anything to waiting newsmen.

Dr. George Bennett, Johns Hopkins bone specialist who removed a "spur" from DiMaggio's heel last November, scheduled an examination for today.

The doctor described the current flareup in the Yankee Clipper's foot as a "hot heel" and said it will need no additional surgery. The injury will be treated with novacine and x-rays.

DiMaggio will remain in the hospital for about a week. He will miss next Tuesday's opening and probably will not play again for at least six weeks.

THERE ALSO is a possibility that the ailment may sideline him permanently. Recurrent flareups in DiMaggio's heel since his operation have kept him out of action during most of the training season.

Joe aggravated the bone area anew last Saturday in Beaumont, Tex., during a slide in an exhibition game. He tried to play Sunday in Greenville and the following day in Dallas but was forced to leave both games after 2 1/2 innings.

DiMaggio then flew to Washington from Texas and took a train to Johns Hopkins.

Lil Wesleyan Again Upsets OSU Baseballers

DELAWARE, April 13—Ohio State may be the team to beat in the Western Conference baseball loop, but Ohio Wesleyan is just the team that can do it.

The Delaware Bishops laid past the Buckeyes 7-0 yesterday, thanks to five errors by Buck Shortstop Bob Weygant and some nifty pitching from Brucksville Sophomore Nelson Reeves.

It was the season's opener for Wesleyan, but it meant a 3-3 count for Buckeyes who took a Texas trip earlier in the year. The game also gave the Bishops a 2-1 edge over State in their last three games.

Reeves struck out four and walked five. He kept five singles and two doubles well spaced before he was relieved in the ninth by Bob Hart who stopped a two-run rally.

Dillard Tours Island Spots

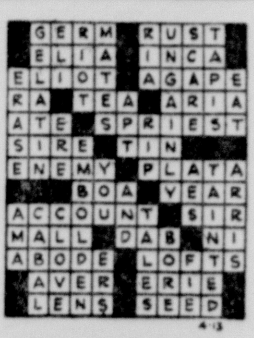

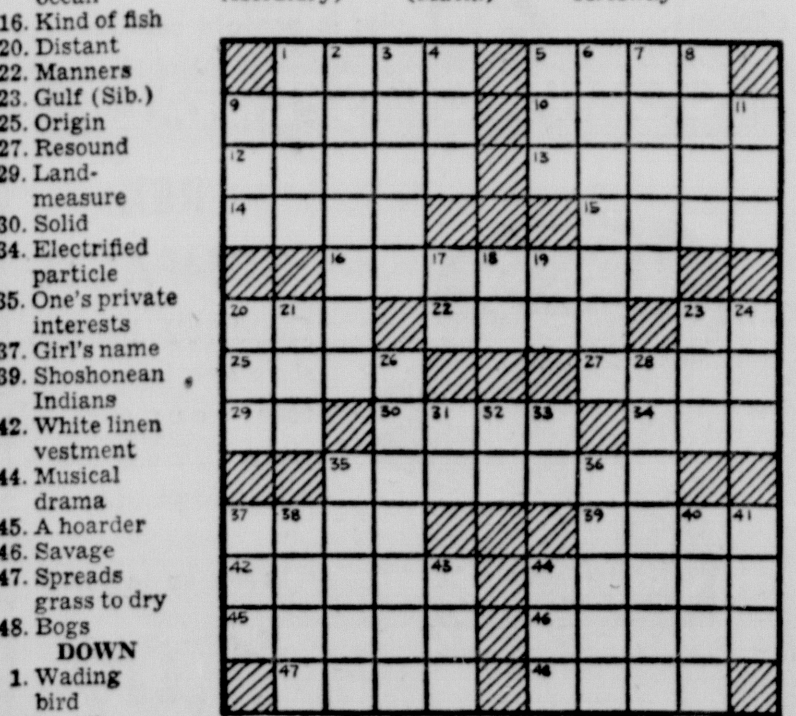

NEW YORK, April 13—Olympic Champion Harrison Dillard and Reggie Pearman, NYU's leading middle distance man, were due to arrive at Georgetown, British Guiana, today for a series of three competitions there, beginning Saturday.

The remaining meets were scheduled for next Monday and Wednesday, after which Dillard was to continue the tour alone.

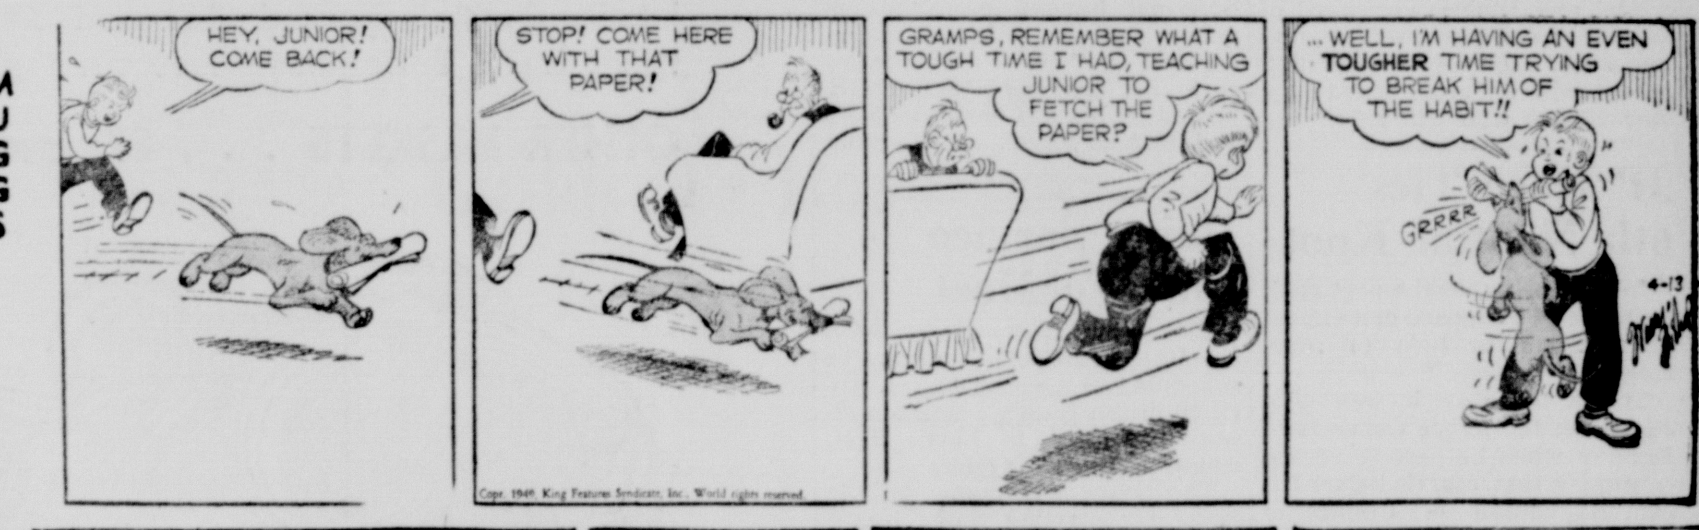

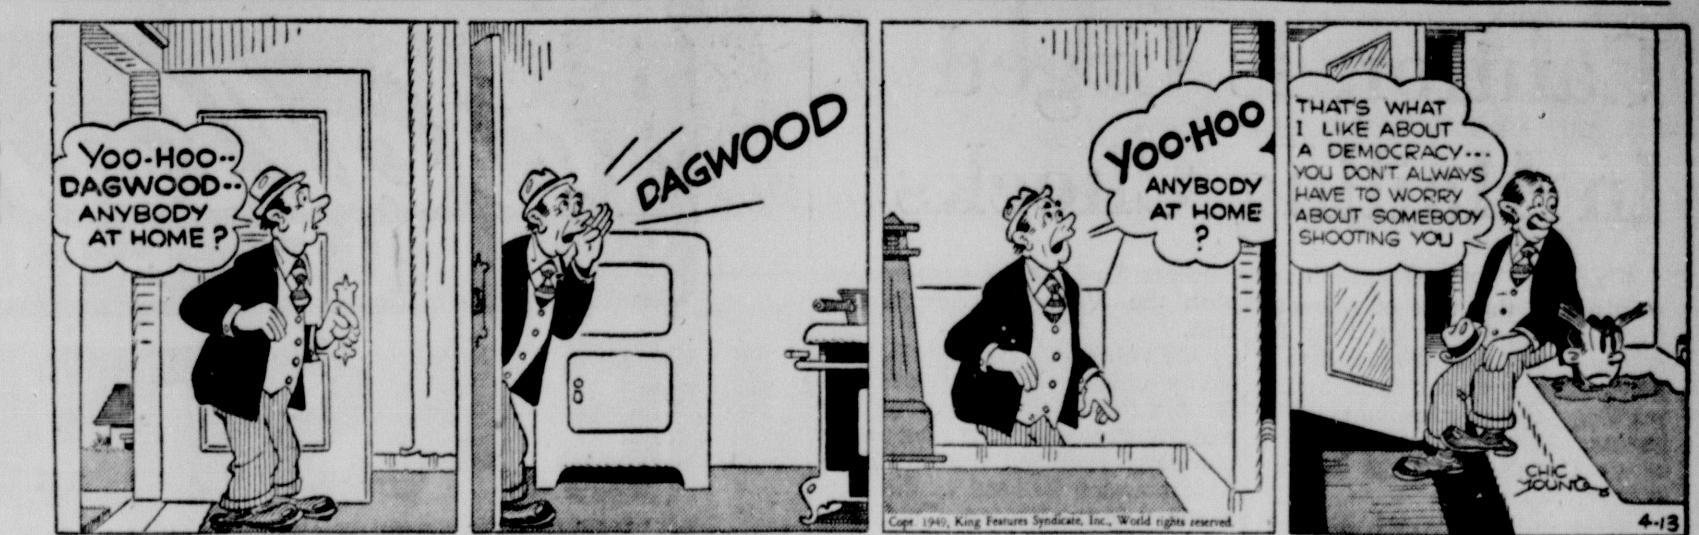

The world's hurdling record-holder, who turned sprinter to win the Olympic 100, planned to compete at Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 23, and in Jamaica, B.W.I., three days later.

Caution Is Urged In Mailing Checks

A number of veterans each month run the risk of allowing their National Service Life Insurance to lapse because they don't take a second look before mailing their premium payments, James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer, reports.

Last month the VA district Office in Columbus, which handles GI insurance for veterans in this area, received approximately 350 checks, money orders and postal notes that could not be cashed although they were intended to pay NSLI premiums.

Many checks were not signed. Others were made payable to various companies and organizations that have no connection with the Veterans Administration.

One veteran, for example, sent VA a check obviously intended for his local telephone company and, apparently, the telephone company received the check he had intended to send to the Veterans Administration. This is a fairly common error.

VA ATTEMPTS to clear up such mistakes immediately, but if the veteran who forgets to sign his check, or mails the wrong one, is near the end of his 31-day grace period there is always the danger that his insurance may lapse.

When improperly executed payments are received, VA writes to the veteran within 24 hours. But his premium cannot be marked "paid" until he sends back a cashable payment.

Failure to use the premium payment envelope provided by VA also slows up the process of crediting payments for some veterans.

All necessary information, including the veteran's insurance number, is printed on the premium payment envelopes sent regularly to veterans who have kept their insurance in force.

Regular use of these special envelopes makes it more convenient for the veteran to make his premium payments and insure faster and more accurate service by VA.

Shea points out that all checks, money orders or postal notes should be made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. If for any reason the veteran does not have a premium envelope and does not know his insurance number, he should make sure his payment is accompanied by his full name, address and armed forces serial number.
